Early Arrival Heavy Guard

WARHEADS IN CANADA

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—The RCAF announced Tuesday night that nuclear-tipped warheads have arrived for installation on Bomarc missiles at the anti-aircraft base near here.

The warheads for the 28 missiles arrived Tuesday night at 10 p.m. aboard a United States Air Force plane and were carried to the Bomarc base seven miles north of here in four heavily-guarded RCAF trucks.

The arrival of the warheads was premature, according to an announcement Monday by the defence department in Ottawa. It said then that the nuclear weapons would not arrive until some time in January.

However, in September the department had said the warheads would be here by the end of November. It changed its tune in late November, saying the nuclear tips would arrive by the end of 1963.

This proved to be correct.

CANADA'S SHARE

The Bomarc complex here was built in conjunction with the U.S. at a cost of $375,000,000, of which Canada's share was estimated at $116,000,000.

The base includes not only the Bomarc squadron but a SAGE—Semi-Automatic Ground Environment—system that also controls a Bomarc squadron at La Macaza, Que.

CAVES BLASTED

To build the base more than 750 tons of explosives were used to carve out caverns and subterranean passageways. The project includes a three-storey underground building housing the RCAF's most modern communications and missile control centre.

Using radar, radio and digital computers as their ears and eyes, RCAF personnel will be able to control Bomarc missiles and manned interceptors.

No Paper Thursday

Staff of The Daily Colonist will observe the New Year's Day holiday, so there will be no paper Thursday. Next regular edition will be Friday morning, with full holiday and up-to-the-minute news.

First New Year's

Babies whooped it up at their own party at Sunshine Baby Hotel in Central Saanich last night as many parents did the same since here. One of babies having typical New Year fun was 11-month-old Michael Liedtke, who seems to be wishing everyone a Happy New Year.—(Robin Clarke)

Fireworks Blast Kills Five

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Stored fireworks exploded in a north Charleston supermarket Tuesday night, killing at least five persons and injuring 14 others.

It was the third major fire in Charleston since Christmas Day and raised the city's death toll from fires in the last six days to at least 17. Twelve children were killed in a tenement house fire last Wednesday.

A series of explosions at Livingston's supermarket ripped the two-storey cement block and frame building apart. Flames fed on the fireworks.

Officers said the injured included the market's owner, Herbert Livingston. His wife and two sons escaped serious injury.

Johnson Veto Ends Lumber Fears Here

What would have been a big problem for Victoria's economy in the new year—according to the Chamber of Commerce—has been wiped out by President Lyndon Johnson.

The U.S. president Monday vetoed a controversial bill which would have required all foreign lumber sent to the U.S. to be labelled with the country of origin.

President Johnson, in rejecting the proposed legislation, said it would aggravate relations with Canada "when we are trying to improve those relations at every level."

The bill was promoted by several legislators, particularly those from the Northwest and other lumber-producing states.

Canada is the largest exporter of lumber to the U.S., and much of this is shipped through the Port of Victoria.

Loss of lumber contracts, following closely a potentially severe unemployment situation in Victoria shipyards, was feared as a doubly-crippling blow to the economic health of the area.

HIGHLY RELIEVED

In Ottawa the government indicated it was highly relieved at the presidential veto.

Officials of the trade department said that legislation restricting other products might have resulted from passage of the lumber-marking bill, contrary to efforts to promote freer trade.

President Johnson's veto of the lumber-labelling bill is gratifying and significant, Canada's Trade Minister Sharp said in Vancouver.

"I am delighted," he said.

NO NEED FOR BILL

"There is no need for this bill," President Johnson said in his first major foreign trade action since he became president after the assassination Nov. 22 of President Kennedy.

Johnson announced that he would not sign the bill, thus subjecting it to a so-called pocket veto—a procedure which applies only when Congress is not in session.

BY DEPARTMENT

Johnson's decision brought varying reaction in the U.S.

A U.S. lumber industry spokesman said the president's decision is new evidence that U.S. laws are "increasingly prescribed" by the state department rather than by Congress.

"It is distressing for that industry to see that the president has chosen to give more credence to the attitude of the state department than the needs of the American people," he added.

WELCOMES DECISION

John Hight, executive director of the Committee for a National Trade policy, welcomed Johnson's decision.

"We are highly pleased," he said. "This will strengthen our position in the forthcoming tariff negotiations and go far to improve our relations with Canada."

In Vancouver, the Council of Forest Industries of B.C. issued a statement saying the president's action gave evidence of "the spirit of the trade expansion act and the forthcoming GATT negotiations to reduce trade barriers."

France to Push Hydrogen Bomb

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle said goodbye to the old year Tuesday night by calling on Frenchmen to increase their country's nuclear arsenal.

France will continue to develop a hydrogen bomb, de Gaulle said in his New Year's Eve television and radio report to the nation.

Only with such nuclear arms, de Gaulle said, can France insure her own independence and meet any threat of aggression.

The French leader pictured a healthy, stable France as he told his countrymen that 1963 showed "a positive score" for the nation.

"During the last 12 months," he said, "France has continued to grow."

Speaking of France's military program, he said:

"While reducing by one-half the length of military service, we are—through creation of our first atomic arms and the modernization of our forces—again taking into our hands our destiny which since 1940 had passed to the discretion of others."

Russians Back Makarios

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — The Soviet Union announced Tuesday night it will support Cyprus' Greek Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios in a complaint against Turkey if he decides to press the Cyprus conflict before the United Nations.

The announcement came after police reported Turkish houses were burned down during an exchange of prisoners under a British-administered cease-fire between the hostile Turk and Greek communities.

President Makarios had said earlier in the day he will call for United Nations help if the British peace plan fails to reunify the Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Soviet Ambassador Pavel Yermoshin called on the president with a note saying:

"The Soviet Union feels sincere sympathy for the courageous, freedom-loving Cyprus people and shares their aspirations for safe-guarding their national integrity. The Soviet Union condemns any attempt at intervention in the internal affairs of Cyprus under any pretext or any form this may take."

Peru Government Toppled by Vote

LIMA, Peru (Reuters)—Fernando Schwalb was named premier in the wake of the resignation yesterday of Premier Oscar Trelles and his government after the Chamber of Deputies approved an opposition censure motion by a 74-to-66 vote.

The censure action apparently sprang from dissatisfaction with the former premier's handling of disturbances in the Cuzco region of southern Peru.

President Fernando Belaunde Terry asked Schwalb, who will continue as foreign minister, to form a new government.

Fireworks

West, East Berliners Enjoy 'Togetherness'

BERLIN (AP) — A peaceful fusillade of varicolored fireworks greeted the new year along the Communist wall today as Berliners celebrated the holiday together for the first time in nearly 29 months. They called it "a festival of togetherness."

West police reported all quiet—apart from fireworks—along the 101 miles of concrete and barbed wire surrounding the free part of this divided city. Under the rain of firecracker sparks thousands of armed men still stood guard along the cold-war frontier.

DAY PERMITS

Nearly 60,000 West Berliners visited the east sector, allowed entry with day permits granted by the Communist regime.

Communist authorities lifted the ban on fireworks for the first time since the Second World War.

Eastern and Western German leaders called for more East-West relaxation.

Inverted Water Tank Croc Hunter's Home

DARWIN, Australia (CP) — Arvid Harry Blumentals, 37-year-old Latvian migrant who shoots crocodiles for a living, has moved into a new home—a 5,000-gallon water tank.

He bought it for $47 from the estate of northern Australian eccentric Roger Joss, a cultured and highly educated man who lived in the tank for 47 years until he died in November at the age of 69.

Joss had the wood-and-metal tank turned upside down, using the floor as a roof of his home. He said he liked it because it was cyclone-proof, but he admitted it got terribly hot in summer.

Blumentals says he'll probably stay in the tank for the rest of his life, too. His neighbors, except for four white people who live at Borroloola, are wandering aboriginals.

How It Went In Victoria Last Year

By IAN STREET

Victoria's police department provided the top local news stories of 1963.

The first story broke early in January with the announcement that the attorney-general's department, acting on a request by the city police commission, had ordered a full investigation of efficiency and future needs of the department.

Rumbles continued for several months and then, one day before former RCMP superintendent George Archer made public the findings of his investigation, Police Chief John Blackstock resigned. There were no allegations of wrongdoing against the former chief.

Some time later Staff-Sgt. John Frederick Gregory, 43, with service totalling 24 years in the B.C. provincial force and RCMP, was given a two-year contract as chief constable.

* * *

The police headquarters, criticized as outdated and totally inadequate in the Archer report, is to be renovated and a new central police court added at a cost of some $350,000 after city ratepayers in December gave the money bylaw a four-to-one endorsement.

Other major news events of the year included:

January

More than 2,000 attended the first public reception held by Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo on New Year's Day. City aldermen said they were "shocked" at the conditions existing in the police station when they toured the building after announcement of the Archer probe.

* * *

The Willows Hotel in Campbell River was gutted by fire with the loss of three lives. The report on higher education in B.C., prepared by UBC president Dr. John MacDonald, raised here what local officials termed the "intriguing possibility" of establishment of a two-year community college on the old Lansdowne campus in a few years time. Premier Bennett announced legislation creating an autonomous University of Victoria.

February

Government House was in a flurry when the aircraft carrying Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to Australia and New Zealand was forced to return to Vancouver. But it was decided the royal couple would spend the night at a Vancouver Hotel. Victoria Chamber of Commerce celebrated its 100th anniversary with a $10-a-plate dinner of beef and Yorkshire pudding attended by 250. Mayor Wilson suggested the question of expanded library services be discussed by the intermunicipal committee.

* * *

Violence erupted twice in the space of a few days when a couple were shot and killed in their Saanich home and a young man shot and critically wounded his former girl friend in a city apartment then turned the gun on himself. Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner assured worried shipyard officials that the navy's frigate building program "has not been shelved." HMCS Saskatchewan, a destroyer-escort built jointly by two local shipyards, was commissioned.

* * *

March

The pedestrian "scramble" light was removed from the Douglas-Yates intersection, and the Colonist recognized the craze for 50-mile hikes by arranging its own "walkathon" over a course laid out on the Saanich Peninsula. There were 332 entries; 66 finished within the alloted 20 hours.

The government announced plans for a $3,000,000 mental health centre for Victoria and new facilities for the retarded in Nanaimo.

* * *

Some 600 University of Victoria students marched in orderly fashion to the legislature where they presented a petition with 15,000 signatures demanding more grants toward higher education. Mr. Archer warned that building an efficient police force was a costly business. Metro health authorities called for a summit meeting of local municipalities to discuss future sewer needs in the area, and the navy's bomb disposal experts found potentially lethal weapons in many unlikely places. The last power pole was removed from downtown Victoria and a youth and a girl were shot to death at Nanaimo.

April

Queenie, the Beacon Hill Park horse, was to be replaced by a three-wheeled motor carrier. Limited convention facilities (for between 350 and 400) were to be included in the new civic playhouse in Centennial Square, and Ottawa announced start of construction of a $2,500,000 forest research laboratory in Saanich. Reports of indecent assaults in Beacon Hill Park result in council assigning additional patrols.

The provincial pollution control board rejected Saanich's application for permission to discharge treated sewage into Colquitz Creek. The municipality was forced to abandon its proposed $1,700,000 sewage scheme and one angry councillor charged an attempt was being made to blackmail Saanich into participating in a metro sewage scheme. A $7,000,000 retirement centre was proposed overlooking Esquimalt Lagoon, and police converged on a Glen Lake home and seized $5,000 in stolen goods.

May

Victoria, by dint of vigorous axe-wielding, managed to hold the tax line at the 1962 figure of 55 mills; but the other municipalities faced increases—Oak Bay, four mills; Esquimalt, two mills; Saanich, 4.76 mills in urban areas and 5.48 in rural area. Victoria Machinery Depot marked its 100th birthday, and Archie McKinnon was made a freeman of the city of Victoria for his 43 years as a coach and instructor at the YM-YWCA. The 1st Battalion, PPCLI, after six years here, was to go to Germany to be replaced here by the Queen's Own Rifles of Calgary.

Capital Region Planning Board proposed a 30-mile parkway around the city, and 86 graduates received degrees from UBC Chancellor Dr. Phyllis Ross in the last ceremony of its kind before Victoria University came into being. A Manitoba visitor snapped a widely publicized picture of Caddy and then it was found the whole thing was a joke rigged up for a fishing derby at Mill Bay.

June

Justice Minister Chevrier announced in the Commons that the RCMP had made "a serious error" in branding Harry Knott of Nanaimo a bad security risk. The young seaman had been discharged from the navy in 1961 on the basis of an RCMP report. The city announced purchase of the old courthouse in Bastion Square for use as a temporary city hall, and later as part of rehabilitation of the historic Old Lower Town. John Blackstock resigned after 13 years as city police chief "in the best interests of my health and for the good of the department . . ." He was to retire in three years.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Archer's report urged creation of a metro police force in Greater Victoria, but initial reaction from the heads of local government indicated this would probably require legislation by the provincial government. Reeve Murphy raised the ire of some Saanich councillors by sending an open letter to Premier Bennett asking the government to force amalgamation. Ald. Edgelow said beautification of the Gorge waterway should be first choice for a Centennial project in 1967.

July

Victoria University was created and Judge J. B. Clearihue became first chancellor. Boomping B.C. government ferries struck a rare discordant note when the new Queen of the Islands established a link between the mainland and Gulf Islands. Many residents complained that tourists cluttered the narrow roads and destroyed peace of their retreat. At a tea party marking the 57th birthday of Oak Bay, Reeve George Murdoch sternly warned other municipalities who directed "covetous eyes" at it would not win amalgamation with Oak Bay.

★ ★ ★

The city bought a vacuum street cleaner, and city manager Dennis Young returned from three years in Eastern Canada detected a new tempo of development in Victoria. Council decided to purchase an electronic computer to control traffic signals at the new intersection replacing the roundabout. John F. Gregory became Victoria's new police chief, and merchants protested banning of parking on the west side of downtown Government Street.

August

Otto-Werner Mueller was appointed temporary conductor of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, replacing Hans Gruber who was given a leave-of-absence. As the tourist season reached its peak, complaints about the smoke nuisance stepped up. Nearly 25,000 people attended 21 evening showings of the Victoria International Documentary Film Festival in Beacon Hill Park.

★ ★ ★

Increased tourist traffic cheered the local industry. London's Lord Mayor, Sir Ralph Perring, planted a tree in Centennial Square and a limited one-way traffic scheme was approved for Rose Street extension. Technical advisors to the metro health board recommended a $74,000 long-range survey of sewer needs, which was subsequetnly approved by all municipalities. Greater Victoria school board decided to launch a trial course in sex education.

September

Removal of the old roundabout at Fountain Circle began, and planners advised that the solution to the truck traffic problem lay in construction of a $4,000,000 high-level bridge across the Inner Harbor. A two-way left turn lane was successfully introduced on North Douglas. Victoria Labor Council moved into its new $175,000 union centre on Quadra.

★ ★ ★

The government approved a $1,500,000 expansion plan for St. Joseph's Hospital. The head of the city police traffic division warned that when congestion on Victoria streets reaches a certain point Victoria must have either one-way traffic or a total ban of on-street parking. Victoria was shocked to learn that soot fallout here was 49 tons per square mile in a month—twice the figure in Vancouver. Council met for the last time in the old council chamber in the 85-year-old city hall.

October

Moving day came early in the month for city hall staff who helped in the shift to the old courthouse on Bastion Square. The jobs of some 1,500 local shipyard workers hung in the balance as defence cuts are debated in Ottawa. It is disclosed that both the provincial government and Greater Victoria school board are planning multi-million dollar vocational centres for Victoria. The $6,000,000 Mayfair shopping centre opens, and in usually quiet Esquimalt first rumbles of a bitter election fight are heard. City theatre operators ask for Sunday entertainment plebiscite but get no support from council.

★ ★ ★

MLA Donald Smith called for establishment of a public transit commission to operate bus services in Victoria and Vancouver. The Greater Victoria juvenile detention home is opened.

November

William E. Hawkins, whose resignation as commissioner of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau had been rumored for some time, finally stepped down. Considered most likely as his successor was Alan Maclean of Victoria.

B.C. Maritime Mueum board of directors formally asked the city to make available the courthouse as a new home for museum in January, 1965. Singer Eartha Kitt, after a brush with immigration officials, said she would never again enter Canada through the port of Victoria. The Tally-Ho was sold and city officials hailed the announcement that routes in 1964 will be restricted to the environs of Beacon Hill Park. Defence Minister Hellyer tells a local press conference the substitute $160,000,000 program would provide more manhours of work for local shipyards than the cancelled $452,000,000 naval program.

★ ★ ★

The navy was involved in a dispute over whether Reeve Wurtele of Esquimalt interfered with the "democratic rights" of a naval officer who participated in municipal politics. The reeve was cleared of the charge when a censure motion was defeated in council. A new proposal was formulated for a pedestrian mall on Broad Street.

December

A long-established city firm, Moore-Whittington Lumber Co. Ltd., announced sale of its mill to B.C. Forest Products. Shortage of lumber is blamed. Council threw out a controversial plan to use rock treatment on traffic islands at new Humber Green intersection, but agreed to plant trees and use flower-filled tubs to brighten grassed surface.

★ ★ ★

Introduction of the new electronically-controlled signal system goes off smoothly. Low bid for new city hall accommodation was 8.88 per cent over budget, but council decided to find more money instead of cutting to the bone. Saanich voters approved a new $785,000 municipal hall and returned Reeve Murphy in a close race. In Esquimalt Reeve Wurtele was re-elected and Coun. Alan Cox became reeve-elect in Oak Bay. Mayor Wilson was returned by acclamation.

★ ★ ★

Victoria University got a new president, Dr. Malcolm Taylor. Archbishop Harold Sexton and Bishop Remi De Roo proposed building of a unique Anglican-Roman Catholic residential teaching college on the Gordon Head campus of Victoria University. Defence cuts resulted in the disbanding of Victoria's reserve naval establishment HMCS Malahat.

Royal Cars Pay Off

LONDON (CP)—British railway carriages once used by the Royal Family are being offered for charter as "boardrooms on wheels" for busy executives who want to travel in style—at a cost of about $1.50 a mile.

Each coach is complete with leather-padded office, luxury lounge, kitchen, washroom and private chef.

"To ensure privacy, the coaches are coupled royal style at either end of an ordinary train," a railway spokesman explained.

The coaches were headed for the wrecking yard when someone realized that affluent commoners would willingly pay money to jog where George V once jogged.

Your Good Health

Exercise Won't Ease Bursitis

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about bursitis. I have it in my shoulder. My friends have different opinions about how it should be treated. Some say it can be cured by exercise, some say an operation is necessary, and still others recommend shots. —Mrs. G.B.H.

Bursitis is inflammation of a fluid-filled sac over which the tendons of a joint ride. (Such a sac is called a bursa.) Injury and continued pressure are the usual causes.

Exercise is not the answer, as it merely keeps the tender place irritated. Rest, however, often permits healing. Various injections are used when needed. Sometimes excess fluid is withdrawn. Why not let your doctor treat the bursitis, instead of relying on friends, some of whom have given you incorrect advice?

★ ★ ★

Dear Dr. Molner: I had an overactive thyroid gland. I think the doctors destroyed it completely when they gave me radioactive iodine in a glass of orange juice. Of course their intention was only partial destruction.

Is it possible that my gland was not completely destroyed after all? Is the blood test I had for thyroid index absolutely infallible? —W.C.

Let's get over the idea that any laboratory finding is absolutely infallible.

Your thyroid gland may not have been destroyed. The radioactive iodine reduced its size and overactivity, which in your case was necessary. After that the extract was used to adjust your thyroid activity to whatever level is right for you. Tell your doctor that you feel that you are too tense. That's what he wants to know from you. He'll say, "Well, then, let's try a little less for a few weeks and see how it works."

Dear Dr. Molner: I have always worn earrings with no trouble but in the last year or so if I wear them even for a day my ears itch and turn red.

I recently bought both gold and silver ones, and it still happens. What do you think? —Mrs. B.W.

It may be "contact dermatitis"—a skin trouble from contact with something or other. In this case, various metals. It's a form of allergy.

Changing to a different metal sometimes helps. Sometimes jewelry can be lacquered so the metal does not come in direct contact with the skin, which is especially applicable to earrings. Pads of foam rubber are also available to protect you from the metal.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is a diaphragm 100 per cent safe in preventing pregnancy? —R.H.

No, but properly used, it comes closest to that percentage.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband broke out with a brown pigment that has been diagnosed as mycotic fibrosis. The dermatologist says it can be cleared with X-ray, but isn't this treatment dangerous and a cause of cancer?—I.F.

It's a fungus type of skin disease and requires a vigorous treatment; hence X-ray. Properly used, X-ray is not dangerous and does not cause cancer. So don't worry.

Monopoly Traps Train Suspect

LEIGHTON BUZZARD, England (Reuters) — The fingerprints of a prime suspect in Britain's great train robbery were found on a "Monopoly" set apparently used by the gang to while away time in their lonely farm hideout, it was charged in court Tuesday.

Prosecutor Howard Sabin said the prints of antique dealer John Thomas Daly, 32, were found on the game board as well as on "Monopoly money" found in a fashionable London apartment where he was arrested.

Sabin also said fingerprints belonging to racing driver Roy (The Weasel) James, 28, were discovered on a blue-edged cat dish at Leathersiade Farm. This was near the spot 40 miles northwest of London where a gang ambushed a mail train last August and escaped with $7,000,000 cash.

Eighteen other persons have been arrested in connection with the crime. They are expected to face trial about Jan. 20.

Cigarette Puffers Set Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans puffed away at a record pace in 1963, smoking an estimated 523,000,000,000 cigarettes.

The agriculture department said Tuesday cigarette output and consumption reached new highs for the seventh straight year, up almost three per cent compared with 1962.

Spying Bulgarian Will Die

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Former Bulgarian diplomat Ivan-Asen Georgiev was sentenced Tuesday to death by a firing squad on charges of spying for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

There is no appeal from the sentence, which was given by Bulgaria's Supreme Court after a six-day trial. Georgiev pleaded guilty and indicated he expected the death sentence.

Georgiev was found guilty of spying while he was counsellor of Bulgaria's UN delegation between 1956 and 1961 and later as an official of various government agencies until he was arrested last September.

Georgiev confessed he had earned $200,000 for his espionage. He said he spent the money "on several mistresses in Bulgaria and abroad."

He said as a high-ranking diplomat he had access to important military, economic and political information, among them state secrets, which he sold to the CIA.

He was alleged to have relayed information to U.S. intelligence contacts in various secret apartments in New York, but some addresses listed in the indictment do not exist.

A former anarchist, Georgiev began a diplomatic career after the Second World War. He served in Paris from 1946 to 1950. At the time of his arrest, he held a ranking post in the Bulgarian Academy of Science.

The stocky Georgiev, sallow-faced with thinning grey hair and blunt features, received the death sentence impassively.

The court also ordered confiscation in favor of the state of money in savings bank accounts in the names of three women alleged to have received money from Georgiev.

Free Trade Tariffs Cut Again

GENEVA, Switzerland (Reuters) — A further cut of 10 per cent on tariffs of industrial goods was announced Tuesday by the seven-nation European Free Trade Association.

This means the EFTA nations — Austria, Britain, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland — start 1964 with their industrial tariffs at 40 per cent of what they were in 1960 and two years ahead of the original 1960 timetable.

A recent EFTA meeting in Lisbon also ruled industrial tariffs should be removed entirely by Dec. 31, 1966, three years earlier than planned.

Lakonia Launch 'Drifted Away'

ATHENS (Reuters) — The chief radio officer of the fire-ravaged liner Lakonia today gave his explanation of why he left the ship in a large and powerful launch with only three other persons.

Answering allegations that the launch could have rescued passengers from the blazing ship, Antonios Kalogridis said all efforts to aproach the liner were in vain because currents kept drifting the launch away from it.

Kalogridis was testifying at a preliminary investigation into the cause of the Lakonia disaster Dec. 22 in which at least 91 persons are known to have died.

In London a young British employee of the Greek Line was punched on the jaw and angry protests were shouted Monday night as anxious relatives sought news of passengers listed as missing.

One sobbing elderly woman asking for word of her brother screamed: "He was a cripple. How could they leave him?"

A grey-haired man hammered on the office counter, shouting: "I'm not going until I know what's happened to my wife."

Emergency Rejectel

Constitutional Crisis Bothers Kenya Early

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya, which gained independence from Britain only 19 days ago, ran into its first major constitutional crisis Tuesday.

Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta's government failed to get the necessary Senate majority to ratify the state of emergency imposed Christmas Day on Kenya's northeast region.

The emergency was slapped on the 50,000-square-mile region bordering Somalia because of frontier incidents with raiding Somalis.

The government needed a 65-per-cent majority in the Senate for ratification. It got 60.5 per cent.

Although the constitution requires the government to end the state of emergency, Tom Mboya, minister for constitutional affairs, said after hearing the Senate vote: "The emergency will go on." He did not elaborate.

Malaysians Protest to UN

KUALA LUMPUR (CP) — Malaysia Tuesday denounced an attack on a military outpost in North Borneo as an Indonesian aggression and protested in a wire to UN Secretary General U Thant against the death of eight soldiers.

In Jakarta, Indonesia denied its men took part in any raid.

A Happy New Year

THE 366 days of 1964 stretch ahead blank and clean. They wait to be filled in largely by the unpredictable. And it is just as well that we do not know what joys and sorrows, what ups and downs, what pleasures and pains lie ahead on the pages of the new calendar, for certainty of this sort would be a dull substitute for hope and adventure.

The one infallible anticipation is that no matter how the world progresses toward universal peace and well-being, nor how many milestones are passed in national or regional or local prosperity, nor how much we may achieve in 1964 in our individual lives, there will be new peaks still to scale and new sloughs still to flounder through. That is the story of all the years past.

Yet this is not a prospect of gloom or futility, but one of challenge to be of good spirit and good intent.

For man's lot does improve, and fate is not untouched by his aspirations and his strivings. Much of the world is hungry yet and poor, but as a whole it is better off in material wealth and in knowledge than ever before, and even now there are signs of an easing of cold-war antagonism among the divisions of the human family. Should these herald as has been suggested both in the East and the West an era of peaceful co-operation or at least co-existence, the result must surely be that resources devoted to military power will be turned to less wasteful use.

We cannot change what has passed, but by the mass of our individual attitudes and actions we can change the pattern of the future on the broad scale, let the dawning days bring their pleasing or dismaying surprises as they will.

There is no better time nor way to start than on this first day of the new year wishing well to all our neighbors, at hand, across the country, and in the great community of the world today so closely drawn together by modern communication and transport; tomorrow, hopefully, by a better realization of common purpose.

Chaos in Ferryland

A B.C. ferry spokesman says the authority has no known way of predicting the flow of holiday traffic. This apparently is the best excuse the government corporation can find for the chaos in ferryland which developed over the Christmas-New Year weekend.

It is not good enough. The B.C. Ferry Service has been caught several times in the past well off base because it was underestimating holiday traffic.

What happened on this occasion was that an hourly service was put into operation prior to Christmas Day and then was taken off following the Boxing Day holiday.

From then on the ferry service between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen reverted to a two-hourly basis. The trouble began on Friday evening when traffic at both ends piled up beyond the capacity of the ships.

On Sunday, chiefly at the Tsawwassen end, the situation was even worse, and the last passengers were not cleared from the ferries until after three in the morning. The pile-up of cars started with the 3 p.m. sailing the previous afternoon.

It is also hard to believe the reports that people waiting in cars outside the Tsawwassen terminal were not allowed access to the facilities inside the passenger compound even although some of them had to wait four or more hours. The case of the mother who was denied facilities to warm a bottle of milk for her child is, if true, a shocking case of red-tape bungling.

The important thing, however, is that the public should be protected from further miscalculations by the Ferry Authority.

The excuse that it cannot predict with any certainty indicates a weakness at the executive level.

Any grade five child could have counted up the number of cars with Island licence plates leaving Swartz Bay over the holiday period, and by substracting returnees from this total it should not have been difficult to estimate how many had yet to be handled.

A similar count of mainland licence plates at Tsawwassen would have let the authority know how many could be expected to return. Simple mathematics would have told the authority by Boxing Day the return journeys were far from complete.

The authority should also have known that many offices and works closed down on Christmas Eve and did not reopen until the following Monday. This surely should have been an added indicator that Sunday would be a big ferry day.

The B.C. government, which has provided the ferry authority with a fine and adequate fleet of ships, should not tolerate this inefficiency by its Crown agency any longer.

Military Precedent

ANNOUNCEMENT that Governor-General Vanier, a retired major-general, has been made a full general breaks new ground in army promotions, since it is 20 years since he last held a military appointment. The precedent thus caps a long and distinguished military-diplomatic career.

For all its fine record in two world wars the Canadian Army has never had many soldiers of this rank. General Vanier becomes only the sixth bearing this titular distinction. Even the serving chiefs of staff of the army, navy and air force have never been granted this equivalent, a circumstance that leaves them out-ranked by contemporaries of other nations, and must lessen their standing in allied military councils.

Only one field commander in fact won promotion to full general while leading Canadian troops on the battlefield. Two other officers reached this rank while still holding military appointments, and the remaining two were promoted on retirement.

It will be seen therefore that within the Canadian forces this rank has been jealously withheld, and is not easy of attainment.

General Vanier's promotion from retirement is thus honorary in character but it is an honor which recognizes a distinguished life spent in the service of his country, and still marked by the seigniory of his incumbency of Rideau Hall.

The general's rank now gracefully accorded him is the more interesting also in that it invites the thought that the precedent created may open the way for other promotions of similar vein.

But it was better than no year at all...

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax . . ."

By TOM TAYLOR

A book of antiquities in our office library, of itself 80 years old, says of New Year's Day that as the First of January it bears a prominent place in the calendar.

That it does. The first of anything always has a special cachet, even if it is a first that occurs annually.

Although, for a while at least, its association with 1964 may be suspect. Letters will go out labelled 1963 until the new year, ushered in this morning with the peal of bells Charles Lamb said invariably touched his conscience, ceases to be quite so new and assumes the mundane character of but another year.

Lamb was stricken, you see, because of things neglected or regretted in his performance of the departing twelvemonth.

But this is not a thought to introduce as we enter on the fresh unspoilt pages of 1964, full of good resolutions and the social merriment of last night as the precursor of another yearly round.

Merrymaking has since ancient days been the hallmark of New Year, you see, and such secular celebration is of long-standing heritage. I hope of course that you appreciate the substance of moderation.

Let me cite the mood as this vintage book puts it, to wit:

"It has ever been the custom to see the old year out and the new one in, with the highest demonstrations of merriment and conviviality. To but a few does it seem to occur that the day is a memorandum of the subtraction of another year from the little sum of life; with the multitude the top feeling is a desire to express good wishes for the next twelvemonth's experience of their friends, and be the subject of similar benevolence on the part of others, and to see this interchange of cordial feeling take place, as far as possible, in festive circumstances . .

"It cannot be doubted that a custom of this kind must tend to obliterate any shades of dissatisfaction or jealous anger, that may have arisen during the previous year, and send the kindred onward through the next with renewed esteem and regard. To the same good purpose works the old custom of giving little presents among friends on this day."

As to the presents, this is mid-twentieth century, and I fear the giving was exhausted a week ago. The author of the foregoing, I'm sure, never could have guessed the impact of future merchandising.

But of old at least, I find, when pins were first invented these were a New Year's gift very attractive to ladies, and the money for their purchase was called "pin-money." The latter term has undergone change, as you know, and milady oft earns and spends her pin-money in order to give the presents bestowed in abundance a short seven days ago.

But assuredly the best presents of the New Year are comprised of the "renewed esteem and regard" and the "interchange of cordial feeling" this old-time volume lists as having priority on the First of January.

May you have your share of such interchange in ample measure as 1964 dawns, and your spirit be so resolute that you keep the little white vows you made as the bells opened the door of yet another New Year.

Ottawa Offbeat

Code Word: Dialogue

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

IF you're going to be with it around the national capital these days, you've got no choice but to involve yourself in what, among the political power elite, is known as a dialogue.

Not a conference, mind you. Nor even a conversation.

But a dialogue.

Better face it, nobody of any political consequence talks, chats, confers, discusses, debates, or any of those other so-common-and-ordinary things anymore.

They have dialogues.

It's the code-word with the Ottawa "in-group," and anybody who wants to make it clear that he's in communication with the intellectual levels of government here ought to say it—dropping it into the dialogue, what else?—in crowded rooms as often as possible.

This is a big switch from last year, when the identifying code-word of the knowing "in-groupsman" of the former Conservative administration was "gloom and doom," with alternative choices of "Same Old Bunch," also known as "Gloomsters and Doomsters."

Of course, the Really Big "in" word of the previous administration was "The Vision," and if you didn't have it, you clearly were a political peasant.

★ ★ ★

But now "dialogue" has surpassed even "The Vision," which is an act of surpassing in unsurpassing style.

And so, if you're not involved in a dialogue with somebody—almost anybody will do, the situation to be identified as "in" being just about that desperate—brother, in these political parts you're dead.

Prime Minister Pearson only recently concluded a dialogue, as he himself called it, on what is supposed to be known henceforth as "Co-operative Federalism."

The poor, unenlightened taxpayers down below the horizons of this sophisticated capital of civilization probably thought all along that it was a dominion-provincial conference that the prime minister and the ten premiers were holding. But LBP proclaimed it a dialogue.

★ ★ ★

He's been having another dialogue, as he again called it, on the side with Quebec Premier Lesage about all the demands French Canada has been making on what Ottawa is coming to regard as "those other provinces."

In fact, no member of the cabinet may as much as say good morning to another without it being a dialogue.

This "ins-manship" has not been confined to the heady Summit of High Fiaces either.

That Royal Commission on Biculturism and Bilingualism mustn't be mistaken for just another federal board of inquiry making still another in a continuing series of investigations.

Co-chairmen A. Davidson Dunton and Andre Laurendeau have made a point of stressing that it isn't just any little old investigation with witnesses being questioned and cross-examined.

No indeedy, it's a dialogue, they say.

★ ★ ★

"A dialogue between members of the commission and representative Canadians all across the country," to quote them.

Then, let's not forget, there's what's known as the "East West Dialogue," perhaps better recognized out in the provinces as the Cold War.

That affair last April when the Grits bumped the Tories and Mike replaced Diefenbaker wasn't an election but rather a political dialogue.

A grump across the breakfast table with your wife, naturally, becomes the "toast and coffee dialogue," and a chat before dinner the "cocktail dialogue," of course.

★ ★ ★

Some people might be inclined to regard the Saturday evening difference of opinion with your son over who gets to use the car and for how long as a family argument.

But not the "ins-man."

He just wouldn't be that old-hat.

It's rather the "historic dialogue between the competing generations."

As a clincher, let it be reported that cab drivers are taking to referring to the National Hockey League race as "Our Great Winter Classic Dialogue."

Every administration dreams up its own insiders' officialese in Ottawa and tosses it casually alike at the impressionable native and the bare-foot boy from the provinces to make sure everybody knows just who's class to the seats of the federal mighty.

It's an old Washington custom where the code-words in recent years have included "massive," "thrust," "crunch," "escalation," "make a judgment" and "have a determination."

★ ★ ★

Here in Charlottesville-on-The-Rideau the "ins-men" in their successive political days have impressed the tourists and immigrants from the outer reaches beyond the National Capital with "unity," the "GNP," "DND," "DBS," and other important-sounding initial talk.

There's a catch, though. The "in" word today could be "way out" tomorrow — like "The French Fact" suddenly "escalating" to bump "dialogue" as the code-word of those who belong.

Plomer Charges

Further Inquiry

From The Edmonton Journal

THE House of Commons defence committee recommends further inquiry into allegations of naval inefficiency by retired Commodore James Plomer. This is justified and needed, on two grounds.

In the first place, the retired officer made some very serious charges which cast doubt on the Royal Canadian Navy's capacity to do its defence job.

And secondly, the defence committee, itself, did not appear to investigate deeply.

Indeed, the Canadian Press reported in mid-October that it had in effect dismissed Mr. Plomer's charges. This was subsequently denied by Mr. Marcel Lambert, the Conservative member for Edmonton West. Mr. Lambert, who is vice-chairman, said in a letter to the Journal that the committee had not then arrived at any recommendations and was continuing its inquiry.

Since then, the committee has visited Europe to talk with NATO officials. Presumably, it has been mulling over the Plomer affair. At any rate, it has concluded that further inquiry is required.

It proposes an "independent committee." What this means is not clear. But we think the defence committee ought to explain why it should not carry on the inquiry, itself. There may be good reasons. If so, the public is entitled to know what they are.

Beatles and Education

Enthusiastic Britain

By IVOR BROWN from London

BRITAIN is undergoing two fits of enthusiasm. One is a crazily hysterical adulation of popular singers or musicians. The other, a much larger and more encouraging matter, is a sudden zeal for education. The word, enthusiasm, curiously happens to be applicable to both.

Originally enthusiasm meant possession by a god or a demonic spirit and the unnatural excitement caused by this. To the cool-headed people of the eighteenth century the fiery enthusiast was suspect even if he claimed that his inspiration was celestial and not infernal.

Enthusiasm may be said to have washed its once-hectic face and emerged with a healthy glow of innocence. The demonic side of the word has been forgotten and it now denotes the warm-hearted zeal and devotion of the Onward and Upward campaigner.

Yet the old kind of emotional seizure has been prominent again. Many thousands of girls have been afflicted with a screaming hysteria not only at the sight and sound of four harmless young men with guitars but by their mere presence in the neighborhood. Their popular music has made them so "pop" that they create volcanic emotional explosions.

"The Beatles," as the guitarists have styled themselves because of the peculiar "beat" in their music, are probably well aware that this enthusiasm, in the old sense of the word, is a transitory rapture. One remembers the recent and immense magnetism of several young songsters who made swift fortunes at the microphone.

The darlings of a year or two ago are no longer mobbed in the street by worshipping crowds. No doubt the Beatles will soon be succeeded by similar groups of enchanters. The feminine addicts of "pop" noises are neither coy nor hard to please; but they are remarkably uncertain and are ever ready for new idols.

The British are commonly regarded as a fairly staid race. Certainly they have shown in their wars a cool and commendable refusal to panic. But, when generalizations about nations are examined, history proves them nonsensical. By the early Victorians in England the Austrians were deemed stiff, insensitive militarists while the Germans were the peaceful, dreamy, musical folk whom one meets in the writings of Thackeray.

By 1870 a complete alteration had come. It was not that illusions had been shattered; the way of life and national aptitudes had changed as radically as rapidly. The dramatist Chekhov was a realist in his picture of an easy-going, feckless, incompetent Russia. Yet the grandchildren of his agreeable drifters have become unquestionable masters of the new technologies and have led the world in the successful invasion of the stratosphere.

The British frequently contradict their reputation for keeping their emotions well buttoned up. Then they are excitable, wild and capable of the old kind of enthusiasm. It is not only among the girls that the "pop" musician leads to maniac demonstration. A crowd of men at a football match can salute a winning goal with utter abandon or endanger a player or referee by hurling bottles in their fury when things go against them. The scorer of a goal is embraced in mid-field by the members of his team with raptures which one would rather expect in a schoolgirls' hockey eleven than among male athletes. A cup-winning side on return to its home-town is given a triumphal procession worthy of a Roman general who had saved the republic or added another kingdom to the Empire.

The old and frantic enthusiasm is not absent from the Britain suspected of tight lips and bottled up passions. Enthusiasm, in its new meaning, the warmth of feeling with which an admired person or policy is acclaimed, is at least being attached to a cause which never enjoyed such cordiality before. A parliamentary candidate can now certainly raise a cheer and probably ensure the support of voters if he promises to spend vast sums (of their money) on education. His rivals in the constituency, so far from attacking him for extravagance and warnings of the bill to be met by the taxpayer, profess even more allegiance to an enormous outlay on schools and universities.

Britain has previously pared this cheese very carefully and thriftily. Now nobody dare say a word about waste or overspending.

When Charles Dickens first visited the United States he was met with such cheering crowds and ecstatic welcomes that he coined the word "enthoosymoosy" to describe the temper of his hosts. One can hardly apply it to the millions of British citizens. There are no proletarian crowds marching with banner inscribed with scholastic slogans and crying aloud for an army of pedagogues and regiments of professors. But there is no opposition and it has been possible to hire the vast Albert Hall for a grand rally of the educational enthusiasts with academic oratory and suitable entertainment laid on by leading actors in order to stimulate still further spending.

There is even an argument as to whether the ministry of education should have two cabinet ministers instead of one. Until recently that minister was not in the cabinet at all and his post used to be handed to a politician of whom little was thought. He might be one who had somewhat failed elsewhere and could be politely demoted to this unrespected office. In Parliament education was one of the subjects likely to empty the House of all but the specialists on that topic.

It is very different now. When an important committee reports on what is to be done for education it becomes as much a matter for newspaper, radio and television interviews and discussions as if it had been examining and assessing the ever alluring topic of sexual morality.

The motive behind this wave of educational enthoosymoosy is not, I fancy, any sudden and intense devotion to learning as such. A large element of fright is surely at work. This, we have suddenly discovered, is the age of technology. We are told that if we do not rear technicians by the myriad we shall be left behind. The new universities are an investment in the specialisms of applied science, and not in the totality of studies which gave the old universities that proudly inclusive name. The science laboratories will be the hub of the new buildings. "Labor Omnia Vincit" was one of the school mottoes when diffused teaching was given in many subjects. The slogan of today substitutes "Lab" for Labor. In my school-days we called science "stinks." It smells no longer and its scent has become ambrosial in the nostrils of authority.

Anxious eyes are turned towards Russia, Germany and the United States. Can we keep up with their energies and expenditure in the race of research and experiment? It is natural to inquire whether it may not be better, and certainly cheaper, to have a few superlative scientists than to turn out a swarm of moderately good ones since Britain, when it was supposed to be neglecting and starving science, did lead the world in many brilliant discoveries. But to ask such questions is to be regarded as utterly out-of-date and out-of-fashion. Enthusiasm for education is on the march where it never trod before. And nobody will deny that a swift heightening of education's status is to our credit.

But we may hope that in the massive structure of schools and colleges to come there will be room for a general kind of teaching aimed at creating and confirming a rational and civilized way of life. These hordes of Beatle votaries, writhing and screaming in their devotion to a few sex-appealing noises, represent enthusiasm of the ancient and primitive kind. Its presence does not seem to suggest that the young women thus possessed have had an adequate schooling in the valuation of our arts and entertainments as well as in self-control. If common sense can be taught, the more teaching the better.

SPENDING my first Christmas for 50 years in British Columbia, I was astounded to find it was not possible to purchase alcohol in any licensed hotel or restaurant on that day. What has happened to the people of the province? Have they become so childish that they cannot be counted upon not to misbehave in public?

St. Paul's prescription for good health, "Use a little wine for thy stomach's sake," is evidently not recognized officially in B.C.

Au Revoir

Permit me to express through your paper to the citizens of Victoria my appreciation of the privilege which has been mine in serving as alderman during the past four years.

At city hall I have conscientiously, without fear or favor, served the interests of the community to the best of my ability. I have not sought publicity. I have never asked, "Is this stand likely to be popular?" I have asked for no man's vote (yet have appreciated the confidence of many). I have enjoyed the goodwill of my fellow aldermen, and have learned to appreciate the fine staff we have in every department of our civic government.

I experience a certain real personal regret in leaving this fellowship. However, as I plan to be away from the city part of next summer, it is perhaps well that I should be relieved this coming year of civic duties. These personal plans, incidentally, were not finalized before election day.

After 25 years' residence here, no one is more enthusiastic about Victoria than I: I continue to be interested supremely in the welfare of our people . . . May 1964 be the best year ever!

Doctors' Fees

It is indeed with great regret that I note that the B.C. Medical Association has decreed a 5.7 per cent increase in medical fees.

The latest information available from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows that the average annual income of a Canadian doctor is $17,006 which is some $1,288 above the next professional bracket—barristers and solicitors. In other words they lead by far all other professions in income. From the same source it is found that the average annual Canadian income is $4,348. In other words those earning $4,348 will be forced to pay the 5.7 per cent increase to a profession which already leads all others. This can only lead to further inflation with terrible consequences for those on fixed incomes.

Doctors are entitled to a generous remuneration as they have a long training and work long and irregular hours. However I feel that 400 per cent of the annual Canadian income is generous and that an increase in fees at the present time is unwarranted and I do hope the B.C. Medical Association will have a change of heart.

Walk Signal

If some pedestrian is not killed on the southeast junction of Fort and Douglas, it will not be the fault of the unsynchronized "Walk-Don't Walk" signal. The "Walk" signal should go on immediately the light changes, instead of several seconds later, by which time turning cars are on their way round the corner.

Vanier Asks For Unity In New Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Vanier said in a New Year's message it is "inconceivable" that French and English-speaking Canadians should not be able to live together in unity. He said:

"It is inconceivable that the heirs to the two great western civilizations—Anglo-Saxon and French—should be unable to find a brotherly way of life based upon respect for rights conferred by history, a respect for conventions freely accepted nearly a century ago but adapted to the exigencies of our time."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said continued expansion of the economy must not lead Canadians into complacency and warned there are danger signals evident.

Torn Up Dollar Bill Ties Up Twosome

SUDBURY (CP) — Two drunks must have had a ripping good time.

In court the two could not remember being together the night before, but a policeman proved they must have been.

Each man had a torn half of a dollar bill in his pocket. They fitted perfectly.

Before Sniping

Oswald's Wife Given Clues

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Chronicle says in a copyright story that Lee Harvey Oswald wrote his wife a set of instructions in Russian the day before a sniper took a shot at former Maj. - Gen. Edwin Walker last April 10 in Dallas.

* * *

. . . briefed wife

* * *

The newspaper says the set of instructions has been given to the presidential commission investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The Chronicle said authorities believed the man who sniped at Walker was Oswald, the accused assassin of Kennedy. Oswald was later slain by Jack Ruby, Dallas night club operator.

ARMY COMMANDER

Walker was a former commander of the U.S. 24th Division in Germany and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas last year.

The Chronicle said the instructions left by Oswald for his Russian-born wife told her that something was coming up which might cause him to be away for some time or might cause him to be arrested.

GAVE HER KEY

The newspaper story said he told her where the jail was and gave her the number of his post office box and the key. It said he told her of a cheque he was expecting from an employer. He advised her how to get in touch with the consul of the Soviet Union, the newspaper story said.

The Chronicle said the shooting at Walker took place within the next day and the presidential commission is investigating a report that Oswald told his wife he had shot at Walker.

Victorian Will Paint JFK

A Victoria artist, with the help of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, will soon begin a series of oil portraits of Mrs. Kennedy and her late husband.

* * *

Hawaiian-born Albert Sterling, 2022 Douglas, recently received enlarged photographs of President and Mrs. Kennedy from which he plans to paint the 4½ by 6 foot portraits.

Mr. Sterling heard from White House staff several months ago after some of his work was displayed in Montreal. He thinks his name may have been brought to the attention of the White House through UN Secretary-General U Thant, who is familiar with his work.

* * *

Mr. Sterling wrote the White House, asking for detailed photographs of President and Mrs. Kennedy just before Mr. Kennedy's assassination Nov. 22.

This month he heard from Mrs. Kennedy, through her secretary, who said the former first lady sincerely wished to have the paintings made.

* * *

Included with the letter were individual photos of President and Mrs. Kennedy and one of them together.

Mr. Sterling says he hopes to complete the three paintings early in the spring.

City Stores Change Hands

Last of Steick's three hardware stores, was taken over by its new owner Monday.

Kenneth Lewis, who was employed with the public works architect's branch, took over the Hillside Hardware and will operate it under that name.

Ken Bishop, former store manager of Steick's Esquimalt store, takes over that business today and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Parrett bought Steick's Shelbourne store in December.

New TV Rules Won't Affect City

Victoria probably won't be affected by proposed regulations which would place community antenna television systems under regulations similar to those applying to licenced television broadcasters, a spokesman for CHEK-TV said last night.

Frank Bond said his station has no quarrel with the cable TV concern which pipes in eight other stations to Greater Victoria viewers.

NO CHANGE EXPECTED

No change in programming or reception is expected.

In Ottawa, the government said it has asked the Board of Broadcast Governors to recommend any legislation needed to regulate cable TV. Closed-circuit pay TV will not be affected.

It also said no new licences will be issued for new community antenna installations intending to relay programs from U.S. stations.

The government said the problem of the effect of community systems on national broadcasting policy "has been of concern" for some time, since government policy is to maintain the Canadian identity and character of broadcasting to the greatest extent practicable.

B.C. Druggists First to Get National Code

B.C. pharmacists yesterday became the first in Canada to be made subject to a national code of practice.

The code was originally authorized by the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association and has become law in B.C. through the adoption of new regulations by the provincial cabinet.

The regulations, approved by the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association, spell out in greater detail the rules of practice in teaching pharmacies.

OTHERS CONSIDER IT

Other provinces are considering the national code.

An official said the regulations do not contain any significant changes in pharmaceutical practice but are merely revisions of older minimum standards of practice.

The code requires pharmacies to keep records of prescriptions for at least 10 years, maintain refrigerators for drug storage and provide adequate lockers in which to keep narcotics.

Henry Faber, 2858 Scott Street, found the wallet containing ten $20 bills and two $5 bills.

Pals Become Brothers

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Two former fishing pals were reunited during the Christmas season, this time with the knowledge that they are brothers.

* * *

Until 1961, Raymond Davis, 48, of Ames, Iowa, and Ernest Hart, 57, of Phoenix, didn't know of their relationship.

Yet they had grown up together in Parsons, Kan., and often fished together.

* * *

Two years ago, Hart's father died. In checking through his father's belongings, Hart learned that Davis was his brother.

Hart said his brother had been put up for adoption when he was a year old because his mother was ill. Hart never was told what happened to the baby.

* * *

Although learning of their relationship in 1961, their first brother-to-brother meeting occurred this Christmas.

$2,200,000

B.C. Pays Millions For Work

B.C. has paid out $2,200,000 for its share of the 1962-63 winter works incentive program, it was learned yesterday.

The sum represents the 25 per cent of winter works project labor costs for which B.C. is responsible. Ottawa puts up an equal share and the balance comes from the municipalities which want the work done.

$31,500,000 TOTAL

Projects carried out during the 1962-63 winter period were valued at $31,500,000. The senior government cost-sharing extends only to labor and excludes material costs.

The B.C. share ran $655,900 over the estimate and officials believe the figure will be greater for the 1963-64 period.

The current program goes from Nov. 1 to April 30. Some 200 projects have already been approved.

Bennett Rathie Thawing?

The Hawaiian sun may be thawing the Victoria-Vancouver cold war.

Sunning themselves at lush Waikiki Beach this week are political arch-foes Premier Bennett and Vancouver Mayor Bill Rathie.

The two have been feuding ever since Mayor Rathie was elected just over a year ago.

Relations reached their lowest during the summer election campaign when Mayor Rathie lost as a Liberal in Vancouver-Point Grey.

They have quibbled over everything from Vancouver's aquarium to the cost of renovating Rathie's city hall office. Mayor Rathie claims his city is shortchanged by Victoria; Premier Bennett says it is the best-treated in Canada.

First hint of easing tensions came recently when Mayor Rathie agreed to have Premier Bennett's B.C. flag fly over city hall.

The two are said to be staying at the same Hawaiian hotel —until next Monday.

Mail Believed Damaged In Train Fire

Mail received at the Colonist yesterday was damaged by fire, believed to have started on a mail train near Winnipeg.

Victoria postmaster Allan Davies has had no official word of such a fire but members of his family, who were travelling west for Christmas, reported such a fire on a train which arrived in Vancouver Dec. 24.

Mr. Davies said the mail would be repackaged in Vancouver and that would account for the delay in delivery here.

Inquiries should be made to Vancouver.

Mandy Stars in Movie, Snub, Words

By AP, UPI

LONDON — Tuesday was a busy day for blonde Mandy Rice-Davies, 19, one of the key figures in the Profumo scandal.

She won a big movie role, was snubbed by a charity and issued one of the more memorable quotes of the year.

Said Mandy, in inviting Harold Macmillan and John Profumo to her New Year's Eve party: "It's time to let bygones be bygones."

The proceeds from her party, which officially launched her biography The Mandy Report, were to go to the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief. But OXFAM announced it had forbidden her to collect for it.

An official said "our action is not intended against (Mandy) but against the commercialization of the collection."

"Rubbish," replied Mandy, saying she will continue to sell autographed books and give the money unofficially.

Mandy was signed by producer David Pelham, 39, to play the title role in a movie of the notorious 18th-century novel Fanny Hill. It will be made in France, said Pelham, for "an obvious reason: censorship."

The Mandy Report contains no news, but does have a color picture of Mandy lying nude on a bed and fondling a red rose.

The Mandy Report came out as a slim magazine selling for 3s 6d (55 cents).

Mandy says she and Stephen Ward slept together only twice —but added: "To this day I remember his prowess in bed."

Fishing So Bad . . .

Reverse Prevarication World's Biggest Lie

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP)—Would you believe the fishing was so bad in Massachusetts last summer even the biggest liars didn't catch any fish?

Well, don't you believe it. The statement is a whopping lie—a prevarication so preposterous it won for the perpetrator, Richard Burtis of Chatham, Mass., the title of World Champion Liar of 1963.

Winners of the 35th annual contest sponsored by the Burlington Liars' Club were announced Tuesday by Otis Hulett, the head liar.

The top tale set a record for brevity in free-style competition uncluttered by ground rules or time limit. It read simply:

"Fishing around here was so bad sometimes this summer that even the biggest liars didn't catch any!"

Police Get Container

Goya Painting Burned Up?

LONDON (AP)—A container said to hold the ashes of a missing Goya masterpiece was turned over to police at Victoria Station last night.

Police went to the station after receiving a telephone tip that the ashes of Francisco Goya's painting of the Duke of Wellington would be found there.

Police found the container in a station cloakroom but said they had only the word of the man who called them that the ashes were those of the stolen painting.

Earlier, a letter purported to come from the thief who took the painting offered to appear hooded at London's National Gallery and hand over the masterpiece.

The offer was made in an anonymous letter to the Exchange Telegraph News Agency.

$420,000 VALUE

The painting—Goya's Portrait of the Duke of Wellington, valued at £140,000 ($420,000)—was stolen from the gallery in August of 1961. It is 20¼ by 20¾ inches, painted on a hard panel that cannot be rolled.

The 500-word letter, posted from Birmingham, said the thief was ready to return the picture in return for an amnesty and ransom money to be paid to charities by newspapers.

High-Rise Office Building Set for Woodward Site

Woodward's old store at Douglas and Courtney has been sold and a 12-storey office building is planned for the site.

Ker and Stephenson Ltd. announced Tuesday the building has been sold to Lochearn Properties Ltd. of Edmonton.

STARTS IN JANUARY

The tower-type building is already being designed and some construction may start in January.

The building will contain stores on the ground floor and offices above with a restaurant and observation platform on the top of the tower.

It will be serviced by two elevators encased in glass on the outside of the building to give a panoramic view.

Architect is John Di Castri o, Victoria. Construction will be undertaken by Lochearn Developments Co. Ltd. Rentals will be handled by Ker and Stephenson.

SEEK REZONING

An application will be made immediately to the city for rezoning for the high-rise.

No decision has been made as to whether the ground floor will be used by a single store tenant or a number of tenants.

Selling price of the Woodward's property was about $250,000 and the cost of the new construction is estimated in the multi-million-dollar range.

Rare Bird

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—Members of the Wichita Audubon Society have reported a rare find—a white wing junco bird—seen during the annual Christmas bird count here.

"While this probably means nothing to a lot of people," the society said, "it is a thrilling discovery to bird watchers."

But No Fire Fear

High-Rises Rise Above Ladders

Victoria's 85-foot aerial ladder rig will not reach to the top of some of the city's high rise apartments but firefighting methods in large modern buildings are such that there is no need to use an aerial ladder.

City fire chief John Abbott said last night every new high-rise apartment built in Victoria is equipped with at least one or two smokeproof towers (indoor fire escapes) which, if the rules are followed and the doors kept closed, will allow residents to escape harm in the event of fire.

"The danger with these doors is that people will occasionally put a door stopper in them to keep them open and this takes away their usefulness," said Chief Abbott.

He said the doors were made so they would fit snugly and not admit any smoke. "Each door is equipped with a self-closing device."

He said fire inspectors checking the dwellings often come upon wedges that are probably put in to improve circulation of air by unsuspecting tenants.

DEFEATS PURPOSE

"This defeats the purpose of the smoke-proof tower and is a dangerous practice."

He said the wedges are taken away by the inspectors and a letter describing what has happened is sent by the department to the apartment manager.

The chief said Victoria's fire department would probably be getting a 100-foot aerial ladder rig in the not too distant future.

"But aerial ladders can never be expected to keep up with the height of the buildings they are putting up these days," he said.

Problem Growing

Crowding Menaces Care of Retarded

An expert on mental retardation says increased public awareness of the problem is encouraging, but could also create problems in overcrowding if more accommodation was not made available.

Mrs. Winnifred Clarke, executive director of the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, told Douglas Rotary Club the old-fashioned, often cruel system of shutting retarded children and adults off from the world was being overcome, but as parents responded to offers of help, facilities were reaching almost an overflow point.

BIG INCREASE

Mrs. Clarke said when Elford Centre, which provides day care for retardates in Victoria, first opened five years ago, only 26 people were cared for. Now more than 100 get care.

She said through adult education, parents and the general public were rapidly becoming aware there is no social stigma attached to retardation and it was being "brought out in the open where it belongs—so people can help."

NO EXPANSION FUNDS

But, she explained, as the annual allotment from the United Appeal is based on the previous year's operation, there is no money for expansion.

The Elford Centre operates almost totally on United Appeal funds and private donations. The provincial government agreed to pay $6 per pupil per month for five seriously retarded students.

Canadiens Won't Lend Junior to Olympians

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League Tuesday flatly refused to lend star junior player Yvan Cournoyer "or anyone else" to the Canadian Olympic team because the last time they did the players weren't used.

Sam Pollock, general manager of the Junior Canadiens, said "there is absolutely no chance that Cournoyer or anyone else will be lent to the Olympic team."

Father David Bauer, coach of the University of British Columbia team which will represent Canada next month in the 1964 winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, expressed a desire to obtain Cournoyer. He pointed out, that despite the team's 6-3 victory over the Swedish national team in Toronto Sunday, his team lacks scoring power. He already has picked up a prize prospect from the Toronto Maple Leafs Junior Marlboro's club in Rod Seiling.

SAT ON BENCH

Pollock admitted that the Canadiens were not so much concerned with the effect of Cournoyer's loss to the Junior Canadiens as they were over the fact that they lent two players to the last Canadian Olympic team at the last minute and they weren't used much.

He was referring to Bobby Rousseau, now a regular forward with the Canadiens, and Cliff Pennington, since sent back to the minors after being traded to the Boston Bruins.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH

"Not only did Rousseau and Pennington sit on the bench," Pollock recalled, but officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association later said they weren't good enough to play. As far as we were concerned, they were the two best players on the team.

"Since then we've decided never to lend any junior players to any team the CAHA has anything to do with," he added.

BROTHER COACHED

Ironically, Father Bauer's brother, onetime NHL great Bobby Bauer, was coach of the 1960 Canadian team which finished second to the surprising United States team which won the gold medal at Squaw Valley.

Cournoyer, one of the top prospects in the Canadiens' organization despite his slight size, has scored 32 goals and assisted on 25 others so far this season. Last week against the Swedes, he scored three goals including the winning goal with 28 seconds left in the game as the Junior Canadiens edged Sweden, 5-4.

Could Be Trouble

Lions Share $21,000 Pot

VANCOUVER (CP) — At the risk of complaints from the rest of the Canadian Football League, British Columbia Lions have shared $21,000 of their profits with their players.

Herb Capozzi, general manager of the club, said in a telephone interview from Kelowna Tuesday that he knows this will meet with CFL opposition but Lions intend to defend it all the way.

The professional league, which has four privately-owned and five publicly-owned clubs, bars incentive bonuses, Capozzi acknowledged this.

NO BONUS

"But, since we are a publicly-owned group, we are acting on our right to award extra money to our employees. This was not in the form of a bonus for winning or losing any particular game or games but for creating a profit as a financial group.

"We feel that our players have the right to share in these profits."

The division was made on a basis of full shares, half shares, quarter shares and one-eighth shares.

Regular players, assistant coaches, trainer and equipment manager received full shares, Capozzi said. Lesser amounts went to players injured during the season and to equipment assistants.

"There could be interesting repercussions from this, not only in Canada but in the United States," Capozzi said. "We are not trying to impose conditions on other teams but we are doing a thing we feel we are entitled to do."

DIFFERENT CASE

"In the east, teams that are privately-owned have certain advantages over us in administration. But out here, being publicly-owned, we feel that profit-sharing is something that we are entitled to do."

Six Goals in 3:40 Stretch

Leafs Post Wild 5-4 Victory

DETROIT (AP)—Dave Keon and veteran defenceman Tim Horton led Toronto Maple Leafs to a wild 5-4 victory over Detroit Red Wings Tuesday night in a National Hockey League game which saw six goals scored in a 3:40-minute stretch of the third period.

The win gave Toronto a tie for second with the idle Montreal Canadiens.

Keon scored twice, his 10th and 11th goals, with Horton setting up both of them and scoring a goal himself, his eighth. Dick Duff and Frank Mahovlich got the others for Leafs.

Pit Martin and Floyd Smith scored twice each for third-place Detroit, which had a three-game unbeaten streak snapped before a home crowd of 14,284.

Keon gave Toronto a 1-0 first period lead with a shot off the crossbar and Martin evened it midway in the second period. Horton put Toronto ahead again on a power play at 4:05 of the final period. The parade of goals started at 8:33 with Smith tying it for Detroit.

TIPS IN SHOT

Keon broke the deadlock, tipping in a Horton shot on another power play at 9:36, and Duff scored on a break-in at 10:11 for a 4-2 lead.

Smith clocked at 10:56, cutting the lead to 4-3, but Mahovlich netted his 13th on another break-in at 11:31 and Martin ended the scoring 42 seconds later.

Detroit pulled goalie Terry Sawchuk in the final minute and buzzed around Toronto goalie Johnny Bower but couldn't score.

TOUGH ON WINGS

Horton has been tough on Detroit all season. Half of his eight goals have been at Red Wings' expense, with two of them game winners.

He fed Keon a scoring pass for the little centre's opening period goal which came just after Leafs successfully killed a penalty to Bobby Baun.

Horton, whose top goal production in 12 NHL seasons was 10 in 1961-62, beat Sawchuk with a screen shot for the go-ahead goal early in the final period.

Then, after Smith, who had only one goal in 15 games, tied it at 2-2 at 8:33, Keon deflected a Horton point shot at 9:36 while Larry Jeffrey was in the penalty box.

Goalie Bower had a busy time all night, stopping 37 shots in all, including 6 in the second period. Detroit's Sawchuk made 22 saves, half of them in the second.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Last night at midnight, golf ceased to have a unified set of rules. The Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews and the United States Golf Association have finally come to the parting of the ways, and now the adherents of the two groups are going their devious ways.

This has not happened for nearly 100 years when the Royal and Ancient Club came to an understanding with the Royal Wimbledon and other area London clubs to accept a universal code. This code has changed mightily since, but until this year, there has been no major cleavage—no breakaway to gnaw at the citadel of the game's legislation.

As from today the Royal and Ancient and its followers will continue to allow the flagstick to remain in the hole under all circumstances without penalty. The solons from the coast of Fife will also continue to penalize the unplayable ball either by stroke and distance, or a drop under penalty of two strokes.

The United States on the other hand will not allow its players to use the flag as a putting aid, or for any shot within 20 yards of the pin.

On the other hand the USGA is ameliorating the penalty on the unplayable ball. Lift and drop for one stroke penalty replaces the two-stroke penalty.

Also the USGA will allow any club to adopt a local rule to permit players a one-stroke penalty drop for certain out-of-bound situations instead of stroke and distance as at present.

The Royal and Ancient would not agree to this, or indeed some other local rule options sanctioned by the USGA.

* * *

Canada's position in this unhappy situation is a peculiar one. Except for the R. and A. and the USGA, the Royal Canadian Golf Association is the only body in the world which sets up its own golf rules.

It is true that hitherto, the RCGA has traditionally followed the R. and A. pattern, but it has never obligated itself to do so.

The only exception was in the matter of the size of the golf ball in which Canada followed the U.S. in favoring the larger, lighter ball.

The RCGA will make its decision whether to follow the U.S., the R. and A., or set up rules of its own, at the annual meeting of the Board of Governors to be held in Toronto Jan. 31.

Until that time, all Canadian golfers, where they are able to pursue their pastime, will stay with the old rules.

It is extremely unfortunate that the R. and A. and the USGA were unable to compose their differences because once the breach has been made in the case of a few individual rules, it is liable to be widened as years go on, and in a universally played pastime such as golf, universality is one of its greatest assets and attractions.

* * *

In the matter of making changes the USGA has always been in the lead. The abolition of the stymie, and indeed the change in the flagstick rule (which they now don't want) came from them, along with many other alterations to meet modern conditions. (The US approved of steel shafted clubs long before the R. and A.)

On the other hand the R. and A., with its restraining influence, has in the past persuaded the US to drop several proposals which it might have regretted later, and its conservatism has generally won it more friends than it has lost.

Already in the U.S. there are rumblings that the USGA rules for 1964 are going to create headaches.

The Southern California Golf Association for instance wants the USGA to give it permission to adopt the local rule on out of bounds as an overall ruling for all the clubs in its membership.

The USGA has told Southern California sharply it must not do this. The U.S. out of bounds alternative must be taken by each individual club on the merits of the case.

If the out of bounds penalty is considered too severe it may be changed for part or all of their boundaries, but only under local club decision.

Incidentally one suspects the USGA was pushed into this queer type of ruling because so many suburban courses in the U.S. now have private homes with gardens jutting on to their perimeters, to a degree that they interfere with normal play.

* * *

On of the worst features of changing rules particularly where changes are not completely unanimous is that they create confusion in the minds of the everyday player for whom even the universal code was difficult enough to master.

It has I think truly been said that not five players out of every 100 either know the rules or go through a single round without breaking some regulation.

Under the new two-rule regime it is going to be worse.

ERNIE RICHARDSON'S CURLING CAPSULES

Before getting too far into the actual business of curling it might be wise to bring out a few very important points of curling etiquette. I feel that the actions and behavior of players on the ice should be of the highest order at all times.

The curlers themselves are the best salesmen for the game. Their deportment on and off the ice is most important in keeping up the high quality of sportsmanship and entertainment necessary to the success of any sport.

The etiquette of curling pertains chiefly to the consideration of opponents and teammates alike in all matters of play. Observing the basic rules of curling is all a part of the general etiquette regardless of the importance of the competition.

So, some of the things that should be observed by all curlers are recorded here for your study.

Players other than the skips of each team, when not delivering a stone should stand well to the sides of the sheet of ice on which they are playing. This allows full vision to the skip and the player who is delivering the rock. This is a must when a wide broom is being given.

Players should not congregate behind the house — or rings—when one of the opposing players is shooting. Or, one of their own players for that matter. And, in the same regard, when the skip is giving the broom for one of his players no other broom should be on the ice near or behind the skip.

While an opponent is delivering a stone, the next player should not be moving around behind the back in a way that would distract his opponent. He should, however, be ready to deliver his rock when his turn comes.

Skips, or vice-skips when the skips are shooting, are the only persons allowed to sweep behind the tee line (or centre line of the rings). This means that one person only on each rink can sweep behind the centre line of the rings.

Vice-skips may consult with their skips at any time during the game as to strategy. As well as the duty of advising the skip on difficult decisions, the vice-skip takes care of the scoring of ends and also decides when a measure is required to determine shot stone.

Finally, as in football, huddles are permitted by teams in curling, but blocking out an opponent when in the rings is definitely an infraction of etiquette.

THE Arnold PALMER METHOD

SAND STANCE

On normal bunker shots, all top-notch sand shooters use an open stance, in which the left foot is pulled back farther from the target line than is the right (see #1).

Such a stance helps your hip turn on the downswing; the left hip will be clear when your hands move through the impact area. Without an open stance, you could lose balance in loose sand while executing the hip turn.

Furthermore, the open stance allows you to pull your clubhead well to the inside during and after impact. Thus, you have a better chance of having the clubhead make a shallow cut and move through the sand more easily.

with Alec Merriman

The San Juan River went on a gay, mad Christmas Eve spree, and she got as high and much higher than any lady should . . . 15 to 20 feet higher.

At the heights of her roaring binge she decided on a face-lifting to remove some of those old wrinkles that had been built up over the years.

Floodwaters flushed the river from top to bottom.

The big log jam which for many years blocked the middle reaches below the Len's Creek mechanical shops was washed completely away. All that remains is one big spruce across the top end of the old log jam . . . and that fell across the river after last week's freshet and may go out with the next freshet.

Favorite steelheading bars and pools have gone or have changed. Fishermen will have to learn the river all over again.

The Sam Creek run, in Canyon country where we have always been pretty lucky at steelheading, is much the same, but the pool below where we have seen most of the steelies has changed.

River banks are a mass of knotted roots after the scouring they took from floating debris. Huge logs, floated down in the floods, are perched all along the river on top of the river banks.

In their mad dash downstream they crashed against riverside trees . . . cottonwoods, willows, spruces, firs, smashing them like toothpicks.

Favorite old steelheading holes have gone, but many more have formed. It will take time to find them, but the river might even be better for a cleanout.

* * *

Along with Vennie Jones, Frank Baker, and Frank Elliott we surveyed 14 miles of the "new" river by drifting in a boat on Saturday.

Sometimes it was a wild ride.

We were met by Elliott at the Port Renfrew side of the washed-out bridge across the mouth of the south fork of the San Juan. He rowed us across to the other side where he had a car and two punts waiting.

Baker and Jones were to float the top five miles of Canyon country and we drove them to the point just below Bear Creek where they lugged their boat down the mountainside, across logging slash, for a quarter mile to the river.

We then went back to the main black suspension bridge across the San Juan which was to be the end of their float and the start of ours. We left the car there for them and launched our punt. Our destination was Fairy Lake, about nine miles downstream.

We were all in high spirits and thought this was the day we would limit out easily. The river was high, but still pretty good for floating.

Our eyes gleamed as we pictured all those steelhead "that had come up with the high water."

* * *

But, we hadn't been many seconds on the river before we realized this was going to be a tough fish and a tough float. The water was so dirty you couldn't see bottom. Little twigs, gravel and mud churned about . . . and this is just the kind of water steelies don't like because the dirt catches up in their gills.

To get any fish in this kind of water we would have to place the bait right under its nose. The water was so colored we couldn't tell where the new deep holes had formed. Usually the color of the water gives away the best fishing spots.

Elliott did pick up a silver-bright fresh-run steelie and a cutthroat, but it was hard fishing.

* * *

Eagles . . . we must have seen 50 of them . . . were perched on trees or circling above nearly every riffle, watching for salmon and steelhead to pass through the shallow water. There were eagle tracks in the sand all along the river banks. We were almost ready to class these bald eagles with the merganzer ducks fishermen hate so much.

The steelie Elliott landed had talon marks on its head. It had obviously been tackled by an eagle and escaped.

We didn't realize the log jam had washed away. We came across the spruce tree at the head of the corner where the log jam had been. The water was really wild as it piled up against it. We took the portage of 1,000 feet "around the log jam" and it wasn't until we go to the downstream end a very surprised Elliott saw the log jam he had known for many years was gone.

We started our float at 10 a.m. and pulled into Fairy Lake at 3:20 p.m.

Navy Fullback Injured On Cotton Bowl Eve

NEW YORK (AP) — Navy's crusading Middies have been hit in their fourstar backfield just two days before the showdown struggle with top-ranked Texas Longhorns in the Cotton Bowl, one of four New Year's Day classics bringing together seven of the top eight U.S. college football teams in the country.

Pat Donnelly, the jarring fullback in the navy backfield that includes All-America quarterback Roger Staubach, halfback Johnny Sal and flanker Ed Orr, stretched a hamstring muscle in his left leg during practice Monday and may not be able to play.

The injury was considered a severe blow to Navy's chance of defeating the Longhorns in a game coach Wayne Hardin admits the second - ranked Middies want to win more than any single game this season. That includes the Army game in which Donnelly scored all three touchdowns.

"I think everyone will concede that this game is for the national championship," said Hardin.

The Navy-Texas battle figures to be the headline attraction of the four-game New Year's Day program, with some 330,000 fans expected to be on hand to view the proceedings and the five All-Americans who will be on display.

Here's the line-up:

Cotton Bowl at Dallas—Texas, 10-0 and ranked No. 1, vs. Navy, 9-1 and No. 2.

Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif. —Illinois, 7-1-1 and No. 3 vs. Washington, 6-4 and unranked.

Orange Bowl at Miami—Auburn, 8-1 and No. 5, vs. Nebraska, 7-3-1 and No. 6.

Sugar Bowl at New Orleans —Mississippi, 7-0-2 and No. 7, vs. Alabama, 8-2 and No. 8.

All four games will be televised in the United States.

As a preliminary to the climatic day of the season, Oregon defeated Southern Methodist, 21-14, in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Texas, Tuesday.

Grand New Year Ahead But Beware of Snags

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

A Happy New Year to everyone. This is going to be a bigger year than 1963 — February 29 is thrown in this time — and most people seem to think it is going to be a more prosperous one, too.

Indeed the New Year messages of so many political, economic and industrial leaders to which we have been exposed these last few days are so wildly enthusiastic we become almost apprehensive.

ALL SEE BOOST

Prime Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, Chamber of Commerce chief Howard Mitchell, the CPR's Norris Crump and the CNR's Donald Gordon are all expecting the Canadian economy to move further ahead in 1964.

There is good ground for optimism. The gross national production figure, up about 6 per cent in 1963, is likely to make a slightly lower increase in 1964; domestic consumption is almost certain to be higher, and so are our vital exports as international trade patterns seem to be widening.

GOLDEN YEAR

Wheat sales to China and Russia made 1963 a golden year for Canadian farmers, and there are some hopes the contracts will be continued into the new crop season. Sales of forest products — lumber, plywood, pulp and newsprint — are all booming, and no province does better out of these items than B.C.

B.C. is also vitally interested in mining, and here the gradual increase in metal prices, together with long-term ore contracts from Japan, seem to assure markets will continue not only for existing B.C. mines but also for others now being pushed into the production stage.

In the flood of the prosperity, the snags that lie ahead may be under the surface but it would be silly to imagine they don't exist.

Canada's No. 1 problem of 1964, and beyond, must be to find jobs for the young people who are entering the labor market. This is a problem which Canada shares with the U.S., and the solution is not yet in sight.

LABOR FORCE GROWING

In the next few years the danger is that the labor force will grow twice as fast as new jobs are created. Automation, better production methods and higher skills are creating pockets of unemployment.

Unless this problem is solved, young people will not have the wherewithal to buy the new homes, the new cars, the appliances and the household goods on which the continuation of the economic advance depends.

QUEBEC THREAT

Another serious threat is the affaire Quebec, which in the next 12 months might extend and create a national economic and geographic schism.

Also important for Canada is the ability of its trade and finace departments at Ottawa to impress upon the U.S. the necessity of bringing Canada's trading balance with that country more closely into balance without threats of discrimination.

In the local economy the most serious threat ahead is to the shipbuilding industry, which is bound to suffer as a result of the cancellation of the frigate program. Further cuts in armed service establishments could also hit the Victoria trading area with some severity.

Against that, the outlook on the lumber front and in the tourist industry is as good as ever.

RONALD L. MacDONALD

Mr. Lew MacDonald, President of MacDonald's Furniture and Appliances, is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Ronald L. MacDonald as a Director of MacDonald's Ltd.

BOORMAN'S
THANK YOU VICTORIA
1963 WAS A GOOD YEAR
OUR REAL ESTATE SALES WERE UP 40% OVER 1962

As Mortgage Agents for the Crown Life Insurance Company, we exceeded our quota for the Year.

Mr. Harold Siemann, manager of our Insurance Dept., reports a steady volume increase, apart from the purchase, in September of another Insurance business.

During the Year, the Company entered a new field, with the appointment of Mr. Lewis Keen, as Manager of our Property Management Dept. Results to date are most gratifying.

With the recent appointment of Mr. Charles E. Brown, as Director and Manager of our Stock and Bond Department, we are sure we can look for a larger volume in 1964.

Thank you for the confidence you have placed in us. May we take this opportunity of wishing everyone

A Happy New Year

U.S. Demands Data From Ship Firms

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Canadian shipping companies have been ordered by the federal maritime commission in Washington to provide detailed information on their business operations.

The three companies, unwilling to comply with the order of the U.S. agency, have asked the external affairs department for guidance.

OPERATE ON PACIFIC

A spokesman for the Canadian Shipowners' Association said the three companies operate into U.S. ports on the Pacific Coast but he declined to identify them.

He said the U.S. maritime commission, acting under American law, demanded the confidential information from 30 shipping companies including a number based in European countries and several Japanese lines.

In all but the Canadian cases, the federal maritime commission placed its order for information with the U.S. agents of these lines.

Since the Canadian companies operate without American agents, the order was filed directly with the Canadian headquarters.

"INTRUSION"

The spokesmen for the shipowners said the U.S. move is "an intrusion into our sovereignty" and an attempt by a U.S. federal agency to look at the books of a non-American firm.

The British government is reported to have told its shipping lines not to comply with the U.S. order.

$500 Bond Frees Youth

A 19-year-old youth was released yesterday on $500 bond after spending 10 days in jail awaiting a probation report.

Bernard Tangen, 728 Cloverdale, pleaded guilty Dec. 23 to charges of criminally negligent driving and driving without a licence and was remanded until yesterday for probation report and sentence.

Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy told the court yesterday he learned the probation officer hadn't so far been able to talk to the prisoner.

"I must say I can't understand this situation," said Magistrate William Cutler. "The offence occurred Dec. 21 and the accused has been in custody since that time.

"Since this matter is a most serious one—I would like to have a probation report—I am going to release him on his own recognizance on payment of a $500 bond, to appear in this court again Jan. 9."

Paul Lother, 238 Moss, was fined $250 and lost his licence after being convicted of impaired driving following an accident.

A passenger, Lieut. E. Tudor Jones, received facial cuts and is reported in satisfactory condition in HMCS Naden hospital.

★ ★ ★

Bruce A. Wright, 1483 Derby, was fined $100 in Saanich court and had his licence suspended for careless driving.

He lost control of his car while making a left turn from Barrie on Torquay and knocked down a gate and a section of fence.

Fines in city court involving liquor offences were: Stewart G. King, 1750 Cedar, minor in possession of liquor, $25; Joseph MacMurchie, 1002 Fenn, and William L. Shaw, 3172 Davin, consuming liquor in public, $50 each.

Greeks Release 27 Prisoners

ATHENS, Greece (Reuters)—Twenty-seven political prisoners held for more than 10 years have been freed on the grounds of ill health and old age, bringing to 41 the number released during the last two days.

Many of the released prisoners were Communists.

More Jobs Held By Women

OTTAWA (CP)—A record number of women held jobs in Canada during 1963, the bureau of statistics said Tuesday. More than 1,903,000 women were employed, the largest number since June, 1945, when 1,404,000 women worked.

There was a substantial increase in the number of married women working from 1962 to 1963. The bureau said 918,000 married women were employed, an increase of 54,000 over the 1962 figure of 864,000.

Boaters 'Unprotected' When RCAF Moves

VANCOUVER (CP) — Marine officials here say the Vancouver boating public will not be adequately protected after the RCAF moves its search and rescue operation to Comox, a newspaper says.

Taking 121 Search and Rescue Flight 180 miles up Georgia Strait also will involve moving the rescue co-ordination centre from Vancouver to Victoria.

RCAF officers and department of transport officials, who declined to be identified, said they have protested to Defence Minister Hellyer.

They are quoted as saying the moves have nothing to do with defence, and rescue services form one vital, daily role for the RCAF.

Officials said more than 90 per cent of all incidents handled by the search and rescue squadron are in the Vancouver - Nanaimo-Victoria triangle.

The B.C. council of yacht clubs, representing 14 coastal clubs and 3,000 members, will discuss the issue in Victoria Saturday.

Musical Ride Unsaddled

OTTAWA (CP)—Fire swept through the saddler's and carpenter's workshop at the RCMP's Rockcliffe barracks Tuesday, destroying a number of saddles used by the Mounties in their Musical Ride. Cause of the blaze was not known.

Hundreds Worked While Rest of City Enjoyed Itself

Not everybody relaxes New Year's Eve. Hundreds of Greater Victorians put in shift last night and some worked even harder than usual to fill in for their holidaying colleagues. They included firemen, policemen, nurses, doctors and even newspapermen. For these people, New Year's didn't start until early hours of the morning, when all but most persistent celebrant had long since gone to bed. For most of them, it was a routine shift, but for some, holiday means even more work than usual as drivers and holidayers kicked up their usual fuss, with resultant injury and grief. In any case, whether you needed them or not — whether you even knew they were on job — they were there.—(Bud Kinsman Photos)

Flowers Trees In Bloom

It was a great New Year's Eve for the birds and the bees —and the flowers.

The temperature—though an unseasonal 54 degrees—was still 2.4 degrees shy of the record in 1917.

Flowers and trees burst into bloom in many parts of Greater Victoria and the bees were there to greet them.

Major S. R. Bowden, 405 Constance, reported an Easter lily with a seven-inch flower, while Mrs. Jessie Grant's garden at 1919 Davie had a salmon pink gladiolus in bloom.

HEATHER AND BEES

Mrs. Molly Gardine, 489 Foster, had six rows of heather blooming and honey bees were busy there yesterday. A cherry tree flowered at Cook and Southgate.

In Beacon Hill Park, blossoms embellished polyanthus and rose bushes, and even a pansy opened up.

Friday Blood Day

One thousand sailors from Esquimalt-based ships will give blood at the Red Cross clinic in HMC Dockyard Friday, Rear-Admiral W. M. Landymore announced yesterday.

To Good Tourist Year

Push Needed

Victoria and Vancouver Island could look forward to a good tourist year in 1964 if more "push" is shown in getting the advertising out, says Fred Martin, provincial president of the Motels and Resorts Association of B.C.

"People who saw the World's Fair in Seattle in 1962, came out in a hurry and I think this is the year they'll want to come back again," said the operator of the Hillside Auto Court.

He stressed that Island publicity was lacking and felt that more push was needed.

"I'm not blaming any individual. We're all responsible to a degree," he said.

He felt that more than 90 per cent of people coming to the Island would come through Victoria because they want to see the capitol.

Mr. Martin added that Victoria and Island advertising should be in California now but he doubted if it would be there by May or June.

"There must be one complete effort for the Island. The Island Publicity Bureau needs more push," Mr. Martin said.

The motels association will meet in Campbell River March 2 for an inter area conference.

Chief Shifts Police Jobs

Deputy Police Chief Harry Mercer yesterday was named head of the detective branch and Inspector Charles Webb moved to the newly-created position of administrative assistant to the chief. Chief Constable J. F. Gregory announced the changes will be effective today. Deputy Mercer will keep his present rank.

Employment Jitters

Layoffs Near In Shipyards

By DON GAIN

Shipyard layoffs will start this month as the result of federal government cutbacks, Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, said last night.

A survey of 1964 prospects for shipyard workers and servicemen in Victoria ranges from jittery to downright gloomy, following the defence department's announcement of its "judicious pruning" program.

Veiled hints of impending layoffs were given dockyard workers Christmas Eve but nothing definite was indicated.

They have been wondering ever since when the axe would fall and whether senior workers would be transferred to Esquimalt from closed naval establishments in Kamloops and Lynn Creek.

"The question of the reallocation of the labor force from such establishments . . . is now under active consideration," Commodore H. A. Winnet, commodore superintendent, Pacific Coast, said.

"Until this review is completed and clarification of some points of detail is obtained from naval headquarters it is not possible to estimate how many people actually employed at HMC Dockyard, if any, would be affected."

NO BIG CHANGES

"Based on information received to date it is not expected that any large scale adjustments in the labor force will take place," a naval spokesman said. "Should anybody be laid off from the dockyard every effort is being made to re-establish them in positions with other government departments."

A spokesman for Yarrows said work in hand would keep 500 present employees busy for the next six months. After that time, it's anybody's guess, he said.

COULD DROP

"We are now employing 925 men and this could drop to as low as 300 in the spring if no business develops," Mr. Husband of VMD said.

"The cancellation of the all-purpose frigate program for the navy has made long-range planning very difficult and the short-range prospects are not very bright."

The defence department's $50,000,000 pruning program includes a 21,000-man reduction in militia units, but no word has reached Victoria about cutbacks, a militia spokesman said.

NO WORD YET

Nor has any word been received of cutbacks at Work Point, an army spokesman said.

According to a navy message "further changes are under consideration in the regular forces but they require consultation with our allies and the minister is not in a position to announce these."

The navy's air arm is to be reduced by six fixed-wing aircraft and two helicopters.

"No official information has been received by Pacific Command with reference to any proposal to reduce the number of commissioned ships in the Pacific fleet," a naval spokesman said.

Spokesmen for all three services said the overall 10 per cent cut in manpower of 120,000 could probably be brought about by the natural process of retirement and other terminal causes.

Accident Victims — They Faced Death

From Hopelessness to Hope

By MIKE GADSBY

"Happy New Year" is more than just a casual wish for two Island people who faced death just a few months ago.

They are now facing 1964 with a renewed hope and enthusiasm which they have never known before.

Barry Cragg, 19, of Victoria, was left paralyzed from the neck down after he broke his neck and back in a car accident in Manitoba in October.

Doctors told him he would never walk again, but he's proved them wrong.

Gordon Rasmussen, 10, of Nanaimo, was unconscious and near death for two months following a bicycle accident in which he suffered severe brain damage when he struck his head on a concrete carport abutment last May 12.

* * *

Even when his life was out of danger, his parents were told he would probably never recover sufficiently to lead a normal life.

* * *

But that was last summer. Today, after several operations and extensive treatment he has returned home from hospital to start his life all over again.

During his darkest days his parents never gave up hope for his recovery, and they were not disappointed.

His father, James, who works at Harmac Pulp Mill, near Nanaimo, said Gordon has had to start learning all over again.

* * *

"He took to walking pretty well," said Mr. Rasmussen, "but he has to learn to talk all over again.

"He forgot most of the things he has ever learned, but the doctor said his complete recovery will probably be spread over the next two years."

* * *

Barry Cragg was released from a Winnipeg hospital Monday afternoon, and walked unaided to the house of his fiancee, Linda Lewis, 3437 Seymour, at about midnight—just 2½ months after he was told he'd be permanently paralyzed.

Before his accident he had ambitions to become an auto mechanic, but he hasn't decided whether he plans to continue his vocational school training or not.

He can walk, said Miss Lewis, but he tires easily at the moment and will spend some time recuperating before making any plans.

* * *

And a Happy New Year to you, too!

Smiles on Long Road Back to Recovery

Welcoming kiss is given by fiancee Miss Linda Lewis, of 3437 Seymour, to Barry Cragg, of 3239 Seymour, who returned Monday night from Winnipeg where he spent two and a half months in hospital after a car accident. Doctors first thought his injuries would leave him paralyzed but his condition permitted his return home. — (Robin Clarke)

Smiling Gordon Rasmussen enjoys holiday season at home following ordeal that nearly cost him his life in bicycle accident in May. After life-and-death struggle, Gordon has come a long way on the road to recovery, and doctors say end is in sight. — (Agnes Flett)

Comitas Holiday Festival

The holly-decked halls, the soft glow from the lighted Christmas tree and the brightly-burning log fire in the home of Mrs. Vincent Smith, King George Terrace, provided a festive setting for the Comitas Club's Christmas party.

It also concluded meetings for the year 1963, the last three of which had been held at the homes of Miss Patricia Holden, Mrs. C. G. Jordan and Mrs. R. C. Newby. Dr. D. E. Alcorn was guest speaker when he dealt with the work of the psychiatrist with the Law.

Club member Mrs. K. C. Murphy read excerpts from books by Eric Nicol, Canadian author of humor and satire, while Mrs. Vincent Smith gave an account of activities at "Young Life Camp" at Malibou, Princess Louise Inlet.

Victoria Theatre Guild productions "Deadly Game" and "Seven-Year Itch" were attended by Mrs. R. A. Gale and Miss Ella Creighton and Mrs. K. G. Wiper and Miss Verna M. Beek. First meeting of the new year will be held Jan. 15, and the annual meeting and banquet on Saturday, Jan. 18.

The salon, named "Lucky", is equipped with modern electrical devices for stimulating the body, as well as foam baths and massage treatments. The girl at top left is receiving a foam bath treatment. At top right an expert male masseur works on neck muscles of an attractive patient. Bottom left, electrical impulses pass through pads on the legs to stimulate circulation, while bottom right, a client gets a beauty pack applied to her face and neck.—(Fednews)

Outnumbered

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia had 20,000,000 more women than men in mid-1963, according to the Soviet statistical year book. The book, quoted by Tass news agency, said this was a result of the Second World War. There were more men than women up to the age of 36. The population totalled 225,000,000, of which more than half did not work.

Van Deventer-Bomhof

Bride's Mother Makes Bridal Party's Gowns

After a honeymoon trip up Island, Mr. and Mrs. Wermart Van Deventer will make their home at Port Alberni.

Rev. R. W. Popma officiated at the ceremony in the Christian Reformed Church which united Gerda Johanna Bomhof, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bomhof, 4353 Wilkinson Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Van Deventer, 1225 Rudlin Avenue.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk brocade, styled with a fitted bodice featuring a scoop neckline and lily point sleeves. Waistline dipped to a V at back and had a bow accent at front. The skirt had a slim front panel and soft deep pleats gave fullness to sides and back. Tiny matching buttons trimmed a back fastening. A headpiece of chiffon petals and orange blossom held the elbow-length veil. White ribbons edged her colonial bouquet of deep pink roses and camellia leaves.

Miss Ko Bomhof, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Her turquoise blue gown was a short-style replica of the bride's. A matching bandeau and bow and pink carnation bouquet completed her outfit.

Christina Bomhof made a charming flower girl in a short full-skirted frock of turquoise silk brocade and toning head bow. Her bouquet was a a miniature copy of the senior attendant's.

Gowns of the bride and her attendants were made by the bride's mother.

Best man was H. Kuyvenhoven and ushering guests were William Bomhof, Hans Bomhof and William Spyksma.

B. van Der Heiden proposed the toast to the bride at a reception held in her parents' home. Pink and white candles and chrysanthemums in same shades set decor.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride wore a leaf green suit, complemented with black leather accessories.

Judy LaMarsh Woman of Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Judy LaMarsh, energetic, explosive and controversial minister, is Canada's woman of the year for 1963.

Miss LaMarsh, whose wit and sharp tongue match those of her predecessor as woman of the year, Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton, was chosen in a Canadian Press poll of women's editors.

During the federal election campaign last spring she made headlines as a key member of the Liberal party's "truth squad" which followed Mr. Diefenbaker around the country, correcting what the Liberals considered to be "errors" in what he said.

Since becoming head of the health department last May, Miss LaMarsh has directed most of her energy to promoting a federal contributory portable pension plan.

She collided head-on with Ontario's Premier John Robarts during the provincial election that returned the Conservatives, publicly demanding a commitment that Ontario would join the federal scheme.

The 38-year-old lawyer also pushed a campaign to discourage young Canadians from becoming cigarette smokers and in the process gave up with several setbacks the two packs a day she had smoked for years.

Although she is not an admitted feminist and usually steers clear of womanly topics, Miss LaMarsh campaigned for a beauty salon on Parliament Hill, only to find that when she joined the cabinet she no longer had time to make use of it. She bought a wig instead.

Blanket Coats and Red Cockades Worn by Canadian Olympic Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Fur hats, Eskimo-style parkas and peppermint striped underwear are some of the features in the wardrobe selected for Canada's team in the Olympic Winter Games opening next month at Innsbruck, Austria.

It is hoped the distinctive Canadian look will win more than compliments at opening ceremonies Jan. 12, officials of the clothing committee of the Canadian Olympic association said Monday.

They declared the Canadian contingent to be serious contenders for the opening-day parade award for the smartest-looking team. The award is being made this year for the first time.

The Canadians — both the men's and women's teams—will march in hooded white blanket coats—with broad yellow and black stripes. They will wear white fur hats with red maple leaf cockades—jaunty ones for the men, a deep pillbox type for the women. Stretch slacks and seal-hair boots will complete the outfit.

For casual strolling through the Tyrolean town between events, the women will wear white, deep-pile kul-e-tuks, the name and design deriving from the parka worn for centuries by Eskimos of the eastern Canadian Arctic. These parkas are bordered with red and green maple leaves and with a white fox cuff on the hood.

The official travel ensemble for the team will consist of crested navy blazers, grey flannel skirts for the women, grey flannel trousers and red-white-and-blue ties for the men, and the fur hats.

Made-to-measure outfits for training and competition have been turned out for each member of the team. The men will wear navy uniforms, while the women will flash by in burgundy jump suits inset with navy racing stripes and topped with navy jackets.

To keep out the Alpine chill, the Canadians will be snug in long wooly underwear—red for the men and red-and-white peppermint stripes for the ladies.

Red, white and navy cardigans have been made from a design supplied by 1960 Olympic skiing champion Anne Heggtveit Hamilton and her husband Ross Hamilton.

Mountie red is the color selected for the light warm-up jacket the men will slip into before and after competing. In quilted antron nylon with black knitted turtle-neck and cuffs, it was designed by Canadian Olympic Association officials.

In the evening, the women will relax in teal-blue stretch-nylon separates. For official receptions they will dress up in jacketed sheaths the color and texture of sugar snow. Besides white shirts and ties, the men will have knitted red sport shirts.

The outfits have been donated by about 60 Canadian textile and garment firms and private individuals.

Ski togs go glamorous for winter Olympics, with furry hats a feature.

Women Outlive Stronger Sex

OTTAWA (CP)—The average life expectancy of Canadians now is among the highest in the world and women are increasing their lead in longevity over men, the bureau of statistics reported Monday.

A new table based on the 1961 census places the life expectancy at birth for males at 68 years and four months. This is an increase of two years since the 1951 census and more than eight years since 1931.

The life expectancy for girls born in the 1960-62 period averages 74 years and two months, based on present mortality rates. This is 3½ years more than in 1951 and 12 years more than in 1931.

Only Norway, Sweden and the Netherlands have higher life expectancy figures. In all three countries, the figures are 71 for males and nearly 75 for females.

Mortality rates have gone down for infants and children of both sexes, and for middle-aged and older women. There has been relatively little improvement in the life expectancy of males over 40.

The new table indicates that of 100,000 babies born in 1960-62, 72,746 females will survive to age 70 compared to 57,517 males.

Red Roses In Bride's Bouquet

Port Alberni will be home to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Richard Morgan who were married recently in Centennial United Church. The bride is the former Bonnie Evangeline Munton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. B. Munton, 3143 Earl Grey Street, Victoria. The groom is the sone of Mrs. Al Desrochers of Port Alberni and the late Mr. Percy Victor Morgan.

Rev. S. J. Parsons performed the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a slipper-length gown of nylon over taffeta fashioned with sweetheart scalloped neckline and lily-point sleeves. Lace inserts enhanced the bouffant skirt. White rose headpiece held her shoulder-length veil and she carried red roses and white carnations. Her only jewelry was a single drop pearl necklet with matching earrings, gift of the groom.

Miss Sandra Martin, maid of honor and misses Joan Kelway and Patricia Munton, bride's sister, as bridesmaids, were gowned alike in red velvet gowns with belled skirts and three-quarter length sleeves. They wore white peau de soie wedding ring headpieces.

Mr. Jack Douglas was best man. Mr. Lawrence Morgan, groom's brother, and Mr. Gordon Schwartz were ushers.

Mr. Les Haylett proposed the toast to the bride at a reception which followed in Holyrood House.

For a honeymoon trip up-Island the bride changed to a three-piece navy suit with white fur collar. She wore a maribou hat and red accessories.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been troubling us girls at the office. We decided to ask you to explain the mystery. A certain women who works with us is in her late twenties. She is highly intelligent, well-read, has a lovely face and stands about five feet one inch—in her stocking feet.

Three months ago she began dating a homely little dried up runt who is at least six inches shorter than she is. He is a successful professional man, neat and pleasant, but they make such a odd-looking couple we can't understand how she could have accepted the first date with him. The guy looks like something that should be dangling from her charm bracelet.

When they are together she stands erect, in her high heels, and seems almost proud to be seen with him. What is wrong with her? Is she blind to reality? What can she be thinking? FLOOR SIX INQUIRY.

Dear Floor Six: She is probably thinking that he is a lovely human being with a fascinating mind and engaging personality and that he is infinitely better company than some of the gorgeous guys who are tall, handsome and boring.

Dear Ann Landers: Someone asked you recently if your teeth were your own. I know good and well they are because of the unsympathetic way you answer people who have denture problems.

It's easy for you to sit there in Chicago with your teeth and tell a woman in Texarkana that her husband is a stubborn mule because he refuses to go to the dentist and spend another $300 on a third set of choppers.

I've gone through the whole bit and it's murder. I lost 15 pounds while a certain dentist monkeyed around trying to get my teeth to fit. Finally I got disgusted, threw them in the ash can and went to another dentist. I told him he could make me a new set of teeth and I would pay IF they fit. He agreed, and let me tell you those teeth were absolutely perfect from the minute he put them into my mouth.

Please tell people, Ann, that this is the way to get teeth that fit. Thank you. —SMILING CLYDE.

Dear Clyde: My dental experts tell me that most new teeth need a minor adjustment here and there and that darned few dentists will guarantee a perfect fit from the very first chomp.

I'm glad you had such wonderful luck, however. Thank you for biting—I mean writing.

Dear Ann Landers: The man I am going with was divorced two years ago. Ward's wife was a real swinger and he sued for divorce after he walked in on her and the building superintendent. Ward was given custody of their three children with no trouble.

He does not pay her alimony and she has been supporting herself—(barely). We plan to be married in about three months. Ward has a housekeeper who is sort of half-baked but she manages somehow to keep things going. I should tell you that I own a business and am definitely not the type who could stay at home.

Ward suggested last night that it might be a good idea to hire his ex-wife as our housekeeper. He said she would love it, and it would be very good for the kids. At first I was sure he was crazy, but after he pointed out all the advantages it didn't sound so bad. What do you think? MAZIE.

Dear Mazie: I think he IS crazy—and if you agree to this arrangement you deserve what happens. I can promise you it won't be anything good.

Garden Notes

New Models for '64

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Another year has come and gone and we find ourselves issued with a brand new ration of 365 days—days which we cannot hoard or save, but must spend, wisely or otherwise, as they come along. And in gardening, as in any other human activity, our success and satisfaction will depend largely upon whether we allow those days to slip irretrievably through our fingers or put them to planned, efficient use.

To plan efficiently, it is necessary to take stock of just what materials are at hand for our use, and with this thought in mind, I thought it might be interesting to look over some of the new plants which will be making their debut next spring—what you might call the 1964 models of the plant world.

Zinnias are very much in the news this year with the introduction of the Zenith Hybrids, a new mildew-resistant strain. Mildew has always been troublesome in Zinnias, and it is comforting to know that we can now grow these colorful flowers without having the plants dry up and die for apparently no good reason.

The Zenith hybrid zinnias will be available in separate colors and named varieties ranging from cream through yellow, salmon, rose, scarlet and cherry, making bushy plants standing about 30 inches tall and with exceptionally large shaggy blooms. One of these, a golden tangerine variety called Bonanza, has been awarded the All-America silver medal, the highest honor that can be granted to a new annual flower.

Several new marigolds will be making their bow this spring, including Doubloon, Sovereign and Double Eagle, named after famous gold coins of Spain, England and the United States. All three make big, fluffy blossoms on two-foot plants in lemon yellow, gold and deep orange respectively, blooming continually from midsummer until fall.

The Burpee people have come up this year with an exceptionally large chrysanthemum-flowered marigold which is quite distinctive in that each bloom is composed of hundreds of tiny five-petalled florets, giving it a fringed look. The name chosen for this new flower is Texas, and I am wondering how this will affect its popularity.

Unique among marigolds is Irish Lace, a little fellow only 8 inches tall and grown purely for its foliage effect, making neat, lacy green mounded plants, excellent for a unique edging. I am told the leaves have an anise-like scent.

Green flowers are not common among our annuals; in fact, about the only one commonly grown is Bells of Ireland. This year a new Nicotiana (flowering tobacco) called Lime Sherbet will be available, bearing long spikes of lime green trumpet flowers on compact plants 18 inches tall.

You can always count on some surprises from Sakata, the inspired Japanese plant breeder who gave us the Jade Cross hybrid brussels sprout and Emerald Cross hybrid cabbage. This year Sakata has come up with some amazing new flowers.

One of them is the Morning Glory "Blue Gentian" with trumpet flowers 5 inches across in an even clearer, more heart-stopping shade than the older Heavenly Blue. Another is Celosia "Fireglow," a most dramatic garden flower that looks for all the world like a bright cerise broccoli! Another Cockscomb from Sakata is Golden Gem, standing 10 inches tall and bearing large golden yellow feathery plumes.

★ ★ ★

There are two interesting new Salvia varieties this year, both welcome changes from the old firecracker red shade. Salvia Evening Glow is an old rose color of subdued tone, making bushy two-foot plants, while Snow Tips is a bicolor, scarlet calyx striped white, and the tubular flower a delicate pink tipped with white. The plant stands 12 inches tall and is reported to perform well even in partial shade, which is exceptional in this sun-loving family.

ART BUCHWALD Tells --

Stories We Ignored in 1963

WASHINGTON — Every year it has been our pleasure to present the best news stories of the past year. They are not necessarily the best-known stories of the year — in fact, most of them have been ignored by the press, and it is for this reason that we print them here.

The first one has to do with a man named Bobby Breaker, who lived on Capitol Hill and was a confidant of every important Senator and Congressman in Washington.

Bobby made $19,000 a year and was the key figure in the legislative branch of the government and everyone was afraid to move without his approval.

One day a group of men came to him and said, "Bobby, why are you breaking your neck for $19,000 a year? Why don't you join us in a vending machine venture and make some big money?"

Bobby said he would think about it and then someone came to him and said, "We're opening a motel in Maryland and would like to cut you in on it because we like you." Bobby said he would think about it.

Finally someone said, "How would you like to be in the insurance business? We could make you a rich man." Other people came to Bobby and offered him deals in Haiti and in Las Vegas and in California, and in each case Bobby said he would think about it.

★ ★ ★

At last Bobby went to his superior and said, "Sir, I have a chance of making a lot of money while I'm up here in the Senate. Should I do it?"

His superior said, "Bobby, from what you've told me, I think people are trying to use you."

"That's what I thought," he said.

So Bobby called everyone up and said he wasn't interested in their deals and that he could get by on his $19,000 a year.

The people he contacted were naturally disappointed, but they all said they admired him for his stand.

Elizabeth Whaler, who received $1,000,000 for playing Queen Victoria in a remake of The Lives of a Bengal Lancer, fell in love with her leading man, Richard Curtain.

At first there were just rumors, then she locked her husband out of the house, and then she appeared publicly with Mr. Curtain in many of London's more intimate cabarets.

There was an immediate reaction to what Miss Whaler had done and friends came to her and begged her to break off with the handsome actor.

★ ★ ★

"Think of the scandal," they said. "You're married and he's married."

"But I love him," she said.

"But what about the press?" they cried.

"I hadn't thought about that," Miss Whaler admitted. So Miss Whaler called a press conference and said it was all a mistake and she didn't realize Mr. Curtain was a married man. She apologized for her behavior and asked the public to forgive her.

The newspapers were so disappointed they never mentioned her name again. She received $500 for her next film.

President Charles de Gaulle announced at a press conference that he was unhappy with the NATO alliance and planned to make his own atom bomb. When the Americans heard this, they protested and asked him to reconsider.

He said he would. The next day he announced that the Americans were right and it would be a mistake for France to have its own deterrent. So he gave orders to disband the program. I want to go down in history," he told Roscoe Drummond, "as a reasonable man."

★ ★ ★

A group of Southern Senators announced they would filibuster any attempts to get a civil rights bill through the 88th Congress. Delegates from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People visited them and pointed out that their stand was detrimental to the best interests of the country.

The Southern Senators listened politely and then their spokesman said, "The NAACP has presented strong arguments in favor of civil rights and we have changed our minds on the question.

"It's lucky we spoke to them first, before we made fools of ourselves. We certainly owe it to the country to support this bill."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Jilted Romy in Tears

Romy Schneider was in tears when she attended the Paris premiere of The Cardinal. She is not used to being jilted. Alain Delon is in Mexico, by the way. But not to get a divorce. It was fortunate that they never married although this was not obvious during their five years together.

★ ★ ★

Billy Wilder will do his Sherlock Holmes picture with Peter Sellers in London. And nothing could be more British than Mr. Holmes.

★ ★ ★

Tony Quinn signed a three picture deal with Columbia, but he will not come back to Hollywood unless he can help it. Next, Zorba in Crete. Followed by The Bible in Rome. Then, The Canturians also in Rome.

★ ★ ★

Jane Fonda is the hottest star of any nationality in Europe. You can't pick up a magazine or newspaper over there without an almost life size photo of Henry Fonda's eldest unmarried daughter. Jane will remain in France for another film.

★ ★ ★

When Richard Burton films the Dylan Thomas screenplay version of Robert Louis Stevenson's Beach of Falesa for his and Liz's film company, he will make it at Mismaloya, Mexico, where they have lived for the past 10 weeks or so. And you can expect another very interesting announcement from the lovers concerning their work plans.

★ ★ ★

Latest bulletin from Night of the Iguana: Sue Lyon steals the picture. This I will have to see to believe . . . John Huston says he has had it as an actor. But I wonder if he will change his mind when he wins the best supporting Oscar for his sharp delineation of a priest in The Cardinal?

He's Digging for a Billion in Gold

★ ★ ★

STANTON DELAPLANE

Writes from Bataan

In the hills of Montalban—(Rizal in the Philippines)—is a treasure of one billion dollars. I mean gold!

They've been digging for it for a year and a half. Spent $45,000 so far. Ready? Pick up your shovels and follow me.

★ ★ ★

In 1944, Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita was ordered to the Philippines to defend the islands against MacArthur's onrushing armies.

Barely a week after his arrival, U.S. troops landed at Leyte.

A few months later, Manila had been blown to pieces and Yamashita was in flight northward on Luzon. He surrendered on September 2, 1945.

The Americans took him south and tried him. (A trial so far from justice that the American defending officer wrote an angry book about it.)

He was on trial for "command responsibility" war crimes.

At 3:02 a.m., February 22, 1946:

General Yamashita mounted the 13 steps of the specially-built gallows in Los Banos, Laguna: He bowed in the direction of the Emperor. And they sprung the trap.

So died "The Tiger of Malaya," leaving behind the mystery of the Treasure of Yamashita.

★ ★ ★

The man digging (and spending the money) is Benito Cayco, 44. The job has changed his blood pressure which goes up and down and gives him dizzy spells.

He is digging at the site of the Wawa dam. When the dam is built, the treasure area will be under water.

He is digging on the basis of a map—eight by 10 inches. A map found in Japanese characters and symbols.

The map has all the things treasure maps should have: A sketch of a woman with a locket. (Is the treasure in a locket?)

The figure "561,000,000,000" Japanese yen, Cayco thinks.

Symbols of the rising sun and indications of two peaks.

Cayco remembered a Japanese military tactic—"reverse the obvious."

When he put this together on the map, it was plain as the nose on your face. Yamashita buried his loot under Montalban.

★ ★ ★

Where did the General get the big loot? Well may you ask. And well may we answer.

England at that time of war was very worried.

She sent out the gold bullion to Singapore, the bastion of defence in the Far East. What could be safer?

At this point, the "Tiger of Malaya" provided the answer.

His troops ran down through the jungle and jumped on Singapore's back door. The gold of England and of Singapore supposedly fell to him. And it is now buried in the hills of the Philippines. You like that?

Let me tel you one better. In early 1942, Ted Lewin, gamboleer and bon vivant, went out of Manila with the troops to drive a truck on Bataan.

He set up a gambling game—that being his business—with an army colonel now dead.

★ ★ ★

"We cornered $17,000," Ted told me one night in his penthouse on top of Manila's Bay View Hotel. "We sealed it in a can—soldered it in. And we buried it at the foot of a big tree next to a kilometer marking."

Ted spent the next four years in prison camps. When he came back to Manila things had changed.

"Jungle had overgrown the enormous army camp. The Japs had changed the kilometer posts. The Americans changed them again.

★ ★ ★

"I looked and looked and couldn't even come close to where that $17,000 is buried."

Ted was generous. He gave me a map of it.

You'd like to know what the marking on that kilometer post was, wouldn't you? I'm not a COMPLETE fool.

Canada's Thomson Becomes Baron

LONDON (CP)—Roy Thomson, Canadian millionaire publisher, has been created a baron.

The title award, elevating the 68-year-old son of a Toronto barber to the peerage of his adopted country, was announced today in Queen Elizabeth's traditional New Year's honors list.

FEEL VERY HUMBLE

"I am naturally very pleased and I also feel very humble. I will take my seat in the House of Lords and take an active part in the proceedings. I have many friends in the House, on both sides."

Thomson joined West Indian cricket captain Frank Worrell and Sir Solly Zuckerman, top British scientific adviser at the Moscow nuclear test-ban talks, in the imposing list of honors awarded about 2,300 persons from all walks of life.

Worrell's knighthood makes him Sir Frank and Zuckerman became a Knight Commander of the Bath.

Honors were conferred on representatives of the arts, entertainment, trade unions, industry, journalism, radio and television.

A knighthood for Andrew Gilchrist, British ambassador whose embassy was burned down in September by anti-Malaysian rioters in Jakarta, Indonesia, was among them.

Thomson's title is hereditary and will pass eventually to his only son, K. R. (Ken) Thomson, president of Thomson Newspapers of Canada, which controls about one-quarter of the English-language dailies in Canada as well as large holdings in the United States.

Thomson himself will be styled lord and will announce later his selection of the title by which he wishes to be known, once it is approved by the College of Heralds.

Thomson was the only Canadian named in the honors list, but two Britons serving in Canada were among those named:

Arnold Heckle, principal British trade commissioner for Quebec province, was made a Companion of the Order of Saint Michael and Saint George;

Wilbur Lythgo, chief executive officer at the British high commission in Ottawa, became an Officer of the British Empire.

Highest award in the honors list went to Baron Eccles, former Conservative education minister who was made a viscount.

Among others honored:

Francis Chichester, yachtsman who twice sailed the Atlantic single-handedly, and Capt. John Davis, a member of Sir Ernest Shackleton's 1907 Antarctic expedition, became Commanders of the Order of the British Empire.

PACT HONORED

Prof. Ivor Richards, 70, British poet and critic who has been professor of English at Harvard University since 1944, became a Companion of Honor.

Prime Minister Sir Alexander Bustamante of Jamaica and Prime Minister Dr. Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago were made members of the Privy Council.

Actor - playwright Michael Flanders, 41, whose wheelchair performance with Donald Swann in the revue At the Drop of a Hat brought him fame, became an officer of the British Empire.

Sir Charles Dodds, president of the Royal College of Physicians, was awarded a baronetcy.

Harry Douglass, chief of Britain's 12,000-member Iron and Steel Trades Confederation, one of the key posts in the trade union movement in Britain, was awarded a knighthood.

David Blair, 31-year-old premier dancer of the Royal Ballet, became a Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

BBC MAN LISTED

Director-General Hugh Carleton Greene of the BBC was also honored with a knighthood, as was Eric Maurice Clayson, chairman and joint managing director of the Birmingham Post and Mail, two of Britain's major provincial daily newspapers.

Wilfred Kitching, who retired from the Salvation Army in 1963, became a Commander of the British Empire.

The Buckingham Palace announcement said Thomson's title was awarded in recognition of his public services, the latest of which is the Thomson Foundation established a year ago to promote education through mass media in underdeveloped countries, particularly new Commonwealth countries.

Ottawa Told Of Title

OTTAWA (CP)—The title of baron was given to Roy Thomson with the knowledge — but not necessarily the advice—of the Canadian government, Ottawa sources said Tuesday night.

A spokesman said the government was advised but the message did not seek the government's advice. Titles for Canadians have been generally barred for 40 years.

Tom Jones Best '63 Film

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three motion pictures, two of them foreign imports, have won the six awards given annually by New York film critics.

Britain's entry Tom Jones took the lion's share of the honors in the balloting yesterday followed by Hollywood's Hud and Italy's 8½.

Tom Jones was voted best motion picture of 1963. Its star, Albert Finney, won best actor honors and Tony Richardson, producer-director, was named best director.

Patricia Neal was voted best actress for her portrayal of the housekeeper in Hud, which also won the award for the best screen writing. Federico Fellini's 8½ was the best foreign language picture.

Musical Banned

DURBAN (AP)—The South African government has banned a production of South Pacific, contending the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical is "a plea for the mixing of races." The decision of the new publications control board was made public Tuesday.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BEGLEY—In memory of our husband and father, Clarence M. Begley, who was killed January 1, 1963.

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hands so often clasped in mine,
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
—Ever remembered by Marie Begley and family.

BEGLEY—In loving memory of our son and brother, Clarence M. Begley, who was killed January 1, 1963.

Today recalls a memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And the love for one who lies beneath
Will never fade away.
The flowers we placed upon the grave
They wither and decay,
But the love for one who lies beneath
Will never fade away.
—Ever remembered by Mother Lilian Begley and sisters Hazel and Iona.

BREWSTER—In loving memory of my beloved husband Hazelwood (Harry) Brewster who passed away Jan. 1, 1963. Sadly missed by his wife Frances May, and daughter Hazel, and friends.

Though his smile is gone for ever
And his hands we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories
Of the one we loved so much.
—May Brewster and Hazel.

BUDYNSKI—In loving memory of my father, William Budynski, who passed away January 1, 1958, and my mother, Sylvia Budynski, who passed away June 20, 1955.
Resting where the shadows fall,
In perfect peace, they wait us all,
And God will link the broken chain,
As one by one we meet again.
—Sadly missed and remembered always by daughter Virginia, Bill, Norma and Judy.

HAMPTON — In loving memory of Robert John Hampton, who died January 2, 1963.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Dorothy and family.

MAXWELL—In loving memory of Jack L. Maxwell, who passed away January 1, 1962.
Two years have passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home—it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Greatly missed by his wife Isabel, mother and dad, sisters and brothers, nieces and nephew.

Reduce your fuel bills and beautify your home with WESTERN RED CEDAR 1⅛"x10" Sawn-textured FOREST SIDING

How does "FOREST" compare with other sidings?

Its greater thickness adds structural strength to the building. Its snug 'back to the wall' fitting makes for warmth and fast application . . . because it goes on like shiplap. The greater volume of "FOREST" siding gives a high insulation value.

When stain is applied to sawn-textured (sometimes known as rough faced) "FOREST" siding the distinctive character of the knots, burls and grain is emphasized. Stains come in a variety of colors such as Maplewood, Mahogany, Redwood Cedar, Wheat Tone and Flamingo. Maintenance costs are extremely low.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

A declarer playing a 4-4 trump fit often meets problems if one defender proves to have four trumps also. But the defender with four trumps can have his own problems, as this example from the recent World Par Contest shows. To defeat the contract, East had to be careful to preserve his trumps.

West's overcall of two clubs had little to recommend it. It was unlikely that his side would be able to buy the contract, and he risked losing a substantial penalty if North were able to double.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	2♣	Pass	Pass
2♠	Pass	4♠	All Pass

Opening lead: Club king

South's rebid of two spades was a reverse, showing a strong hand with more hearts than spades. Holding four cards spade support, two key cards and the prospect of a heart ruff to establish the suit, North was fully justified in jumping to four spades.

As it happens, four spades is a somewhat inferior contract, mainly because South's values include two almost useless queens. To gain full points for bidding, North-South were required to stay in a part-score contract in a major suit, or to double East-West in any contract other than two clubs.

However, as the hearts divide favorably for declarer, the defence has to play carefully to defeat a four spades contract. Given the opportunity, South can establish hearts with a ruff, draw trumps and make his contract. The best defence is to play three rounds of clubs, which declarer counters by discarding his losing diamond. The defenders get the best of it if East has had the foresight to unblock his club jack, permitting West to win the third trick. Continuing with the plan of weakening declarer's trumps, West plays a fourth round of clubs. Dummy ruffs and East discards a heart, refusing to overruff. Declarer has then no way to make his contract.

12 Months of Contrast For Fulford Harbor Folk

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD HARBOUR — That old year of 1963 was a year of contrasts, in Fulford at least.

Snow blanketed Salt Spring Island, starting on Jan. 13. The temperature dipped to near zero, then warmed up, turned cold again by the end and gave out sleet and ice, and was altogether rather ornery — then it was suddenly Feb. 2 and the temperature rose to 50 at night, climbing to the 60's and 70's by noon.

The first bluebird arrived on Feb. 8, crocuses popped open on the lawns and the Department of Transport surprised the community by mending the float at the docks.

Sea lions cavorted near the shore, and Morry Akerman made news by beating the B.C. Emerald Glove champion Fred Fuller, at the boxing card in the Fulford Hall.

B.C. Logs were reported drifting from Vancouver Island onto Oahu beach in Hawaii, according to the Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

The sun continued to shine, with summery weather by day and a touch of frost at night—and shone into the month of March, giving lovely weather for weeks.

April Fool's Day changed things a bit, and it grew somewhat cooler—then the hummingbirds were here April 2 and 3, looking miserable in the cold.

The sparrows were wiser, they came April 16.

Three friends, Ronda Lee, Jayney French and Dianne Hobday, (whose birthdays all fall on the same date), celebrated their anniversary for the 15th consecutive year.

Then snow fell the first week in May but only on the mountains and by May 16 summer came back.

The temperatures rose to the 80's and 90's. It was so hot on May Day in Ganges that some recordings melted during the parade. So did people—almost.

In June the vivacious opera singer from England, Miss Maud Neilson, arrived to visit her cousins, Mrs. Betty Drummond and the Shaw family.

The Blenheim - Bolingbroke fighter plane, owned by George A. Mauele of Pat Bay, and the only plane of its type in existence, as far as is known, left Fulford to be shipped to the Ottawa Air Museum. The plane had rested in Fulford for 17 years and had an exciting history.

Mrs. Dorothy Garbutt of the Winnipeg Free Press, where she is a columnist, visited Mrs. Frank Morrison, and was a guest of the Canadian Women's Press Club at a luncheon in Victoria.

The Mike Byron's little baby was christened at St. Mary's Church in July, and beauty came to the woods on the Island as masses of foxgloves bloomed over the hills and lanes.

Mothers in the district were stricken with baseball fever and challenged their sons to bat it out, while the ironing piled up at home and housework went agley . . . but, Oh, they had fun!

Land Loaned

The Shaw family offered the loan of a piece of land for a parking lot near the Fulford Hall — and the Hall itself had recently acquired a new hardwood floor, fit for roller skating. Mrs. A. J. Hepburn was honored by her Grade 12 students in appreciation for her inspiring leadership.

In August, St. Paul's historical Roman Catholic Church, built in 1880, once more opened its doors to services on a Sunday morning, after several years of closed doors.

Pirates Land

Mrs. G. Maude and her daughter Alison, A. E. Roddis and Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Stewart were all off on a trip to England, Scotland and other parts.

Pirates took over Salt Spring Island and the Jolly Roger flew from masts. Brigands seized girls and took them "aboard the lugger." Fulford went "over the top" on its Pirate Day with a beef barbeque, clam bake and dance in the Fulford Hall. Those were three wild days—Aug. 9, 10 and 11.

By September, everyone on the island seemed slightly "pooped" after all the excitement—but even so, that was a lively month.

Whales Seen

Killer whales were heard blowing in the harbor and they cavorted near the shore. The Victoria Power Squadron held its annual Yacht Club picnic at Sollmar.

The Fulford Salmon Derby got under way, and garbage dumpers came under fire from the health department.

Pat Stewart tried to bring up a baby kingfisher. May Queen Nancy Reynolds reigned over the island for 1963 and into 1964. Several large skates were caught near Russell Island by deep-sea fishing.

R. Patterson was elected to trustee on the school board—School District 64 (Gulf Islands).

Barn Gone

The Fulford Athletic Club and hall committee gave the children a Halloween party in October. Roller skating and badminton and other sports have been rolling along merrily.

November saw the end of an historical old barn as it was demolished on the Gyves property by Gordie Padgett and Chris Rees.

The veteran ferry Mv. Cy Peck once more filled in for the Horseshoe Bay - Gibson Landing ferry.

December brought colored lights around the harbor, Santa Claus visited the children in the Fulford Hall, and buckets and buckets of rain fell, overflowing lakes, streams and making new ones.

A Little Wet

Four feet of water ran over the road by the lake at Beaver Point.

Christmas week brought the lovely carol services, and a surprise gift from the heavens on Christmas morning — a gorgeous sunrise and a lovely, bright, sunny day!

Chimes rang out over the sea and it was a happy Christmas for all—in spite of 1963 ending the last week all wet. As 1964 is just coming around the bend, here's wishing all a Happy New Year!

CAIRO—A newspaper says the Saudi Arabian prime minister, Crown Prince Faisal, has thwarted an attempt by his brother, King Saud, to oust him.

1963 Drier Than Average Believe It or Not!

Believe it or not, it was a drier than average year.

Figures compiled by the weather office show December was the wettest month of the year, but the total rainfall during the year was 24.55 inches, 1.64 below average.

The record high rainfall was 37.99 inches in 1881 and the record low was 14.59 inches in 1952.

December's rainfall was 5.06 inches, far below the December high of 13.28 inches set in 1935.

Number of days with measurable rainfall was 131, 16 days below average.

On the brighter side, 1963 had 2,080.3 hours of sunshine which was slightly below average. May set a new record with 336.4 hours which was 81.4 hours greater than any previous May.

May was also the driest month during the year with only 0.31 inch of rain, but it fell short of a record as three previous years had a month where no rain fell.

Lowest temperature for the year was Jan. 11 with 16.9 degrees.

RECORD LOW

Record low temperature was set in 1930 with a reading of 6.4 degrees.

The highest temperature recorded during the year was on Sept. 9 when the mercury hit 83.4.

Snowfall during the year was 2.7 inches.

This was 8.9 inches less than average and far below the record high of 78.2 inches set in 1916.

All figures were recorded up to 9:30 p.m. yesterday.

How to Appreciate New Year's Day

NEW YORK (AP) — As a public service, Dr. Herbert Gould offers this prescription for a hangover: Drink one ounce of cognac in three ounces of champagne.

"Cognac is a stimulant. Champagne adds tone to the weariest of days and inspires a feeling of gaiety."

He's president of the Physicians' Wine Appreciation Society of New York.

Capital Budget System City Project for 1964

By IAN STREET

This is to be the year of the capital budget in Victoria.

After years of dabbling in the subject, it's apparent that most members of city council have only a hazy idea of the nature of a capital budget. They see it as some kind of panacea, which it certainly is not.

Yet, sometime in the early spring, council will have to decide whether to adopt a program of capital spending covering the next three to five years.

The importance of this decision, by far, overshadows anything else that is likely to come before council this year or for some time in the future.

★ ★ ★

City Hall Comment

What, then, is a capital budget?

Firstly, it is a realistic assessment of the resources of the community, determining what we can afford to borrow and repay on a planned program, and what funds can be obtained from such other sources as government grants.

It is only within this framework that a list of capital works can be drawn up, and priority established.

★ ★ ★

A good capital budget, therefore, is rigid in the amounts of money that can be allocated for capital spending, but extremely flexible in terms of when a given project is to be undertaken. The priority of various works thus is a matter of policy to be decided by each year's council.

★ ★ ★

It is a blueprint for growth, designed to prevent overspending and to make council consider every project in perspective, rather than act according to the sentiment of the moment.

★ ★ ★

Also in the coming year we can look for:

- The city to acquire a greater interest in Bastion Square and to begin actual rehabilitation of the historic old lower town area.
- Improvements to Memorial Arena facilities and some long-term plans prepared for future growth.
- A start on the first permanent downtown pedestrian mall in one or two blocks at the south end of Broad Street.

★ ★ ★

- A move out of temporary quarters into new city hall accommodation on Centennial Square, which by the year's end will be landscaped, and, it is hoped, complete with operating civic playhouse. There'll also be a new police station and court on the same four-acre site.

★ ★ ★

- Lots of intermunicipal discussions, mostly inconclusive, on the Victoria public library agreement, results of the traffic study, and on the proposed Greater Victoria sewer study which will probably be delayed while its scope is enlarged.

Subway Driver Murdered

NEW YORK (AP)—A subway train motorman was stabbed to death in his engineer compartment Monday, but the train automatically stopped when he released the controls. About 150 passengers were aboard the IRT express.

The IRT is the Interborough Rapid Transit line that connects four of the five boroughs that make up New York City.

STOP KICKING

Police said motorman Frank Miland, 38, opened the door of his compartment to tell a man to stop kicking it.

But the man continued to kick and shout, and when Miland opened the door a second time, the man stabbed him in the abdomen with a switchblade knife. The killer, identified as a Negro about 25 years old, then fled.

Washout Filled In

The washout on the Port Renfrew Road near Bear Creek was filled in yesterday by B.C. Forest Products road crews, opening the road from Shawnigan Lake to the delta of the San Juan at Port Renfrew and to Harris Creek-San Juan fishing grounds.

But the bridge across the south fork of the San Juan, connecting the delta island with Port Renfrew, is still out.

Police Change Minds Fish Poacher Safe

A poacher under sentence of death has been reprieved.

Police permission to shoot the kingfisher which has been raiding the goldfish ponds of Gordon Tomlin, 3017 Synod has been withdrawn.

Story of the death sentence was carried in the Colonist yesterday and since then Saanich police received numerous phone calls protesting the decision and pointing out that kingfishers are protected by law.

The kingfisher has been stealing fish from Mr. Tomlin's two ornamental ponds for the past three or four years and finally in exasperation he sought police permission to shoot the thief.

He said the kingfisher only goes after the larger fish, which are the breeders, and when the smaller ones grow they too become the target.

Mr. Tomlin has frequently chased the bird from one pool only to see it head for the other, 80 feet away.

Early Arrival Heavy Guard

WARHEADS IN CANADA

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—The RCAF announced Tuesday night that nuclear-tipped warheads have arrived for installation on Bomarc missiles at the anti-aircraft base near here.

The warheads for the 28 missiles arrived Tuesday night at 10 p.m. aboard a United States Air Force plane and were carried to the Bomarc base seven miles north of here in four heavily-guarded RCAF trucks.

The arrival of the warheads was premature, according to an announcement Monday by the defence department in Ottawa. It said then that the nuclear weapons would not arrive until some time in January.

However, in September the department had said the warheads would be here by the end of November. It changed its tune in late November, saying the nuclear tips would arrive by the end of 1963.

This proved to be the correct

CANADA'S SHARE

The Bomarc complex here was built in conjunction with the U.S. at a cost of $375,000,000, of which Canada's share was estimated at $116,000,000.

The base includes not only the Bomarc squadron but a SAGE—Semi-Automatic Ground Environment—system that also controls a Bomarc squadron at La Macaza, Que.

CAVES BLASTED

To build the base more than 750 tons of explosive was used to carve out caverns and subterranean passageways. The project includes a three-storey underground building housing the RCAF's most modern communications and missile control centre.

Using radar, radio and digital computers as their ears and eyes, RCAF personnel will be able to control Bomarc missiles and manned interceptors.

No Paper Thursday

Staff of The Daily Colonist will observe the New Year's Day holiday, so there will be no paper Thursday. Next regular edition will be Friday morning, with full holiday and up-to-the-minute news.

Fireworks Blast Kills Five

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Stored fireworks exploded in a north Charleston supermarket Tuesday night, killing at least five persons and injuring 14 others.

It was the third major fire in Charleston since Christmas Day and raised the city's death toll from fires in the last six days to at least 17. Twelve children were killed in a tenement house fire last Wednesday.

A series of explosions at Livingston's supermarket ripped the two-storey cement block and frame building apart. Flames fed on the fireworks.

Officers said the injured included the market's owner, Herbert Livingston. His wife and two sons escaped serious injury.

Johnson Veto Ends Lumber Fears Here

What would have been a big problem for Victoria's economy in the new year—according to the Chamber of Commerce—has been wiped out by President Lyndon Johnson.

The U.S. president Monday vetoed a controversial bill which would have required all foreign lumber sent to the U.S. to be labelled with the country of origin.

President Johnson, in rejecting the proposed legislation, said it would aggravate relations with Canada "when we are trying to improve those relations at every level."

The bill was promoted by several legislators, particularly those from the Northwest and other lumber-producing states.

Canada is the largest exporter of lumber to the U.S., and much of this is shipped through the Port of Victoria.

Loss of lumber contracts, following closely a potentially severe unemployment situation in Victoria shipyards, was feared as a doubly-crippling blow to the economic health of the area.

HIGHLY RELIEVED

In Ottawa the government indicated it was highly relieved at the presidential veto.

Officials of the trade department said that legislation restricting other products might have resulted from passage of the lumber-marking bill, contrary to efforts to promote freer trade.

President Johnson's veto of the lumber-labelling bill is gratifying and significant, Canada's Trade Minister Sharp said in Vancouver.

"I am delighted," he said.

NO NEED FOR BILL

"There is no need for this bill," President Johnson said in his first major foreign trade action since he became president after the assassination Nov. 22 of President Kennedy.

Johnson announced that he would not sign the bill, thus subjecting it to a so-called pocket veto—a procedure which applies only when Congress is not in session.

BY DEPARTMENT

Johnson's decision brought varying reaction in the U.S.

A U.S. lumber industry spokesman said the president's decision is new evidence that U.S. laws are "increasingly prescribed" by the state department rather than by Congress.

"It is distressing for that industry to see that the president has chosen to give more credence to the attitude of the state department than the needs of the American people," he added.

WELCOMES DECISION

John Hight, executive director of the Committee for a National Trade policy, welcomed Johnson's decision.

"We are highly pleased," he said. "This will strengthen our position in the forthcoming tariff negotiations and go far to improve our relations with Canada."

In Vancouver, the Council of Forest Industries of B.C. issued a statement saying the president's action gave evidence of "the spirit of the trade expansion act and the forthcoming GATT negotiations to reduce trade barriers."

France to Push Hydrogen Bomb

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle said goodbye to the old year Tuesday night by calling on Frenchmen to increase their country's nuclear arsenal.

France will continue to develop a hydrogen bomb, de Gaulle said in his New Year's Eve television and radio report to the nation.

Only with such nuclear arms, de Gaulle said, can France insure her own independence and meet any threat of aggression.

The French leader pictured a healthy, stable France as he told his countrymen that 1963 showed "a positive score" for the nation.

"During the last 12 months," he said, "France has continued to grow."

Speaking of France's military program, he said:

"While reducing by one-half the length of military service, we are—through creation of our first atomic arms and the modernization of our forces—again taking into our hands our destiny which since 1940 had passed to the discretion of others."

West, East Berliners Enjoy 'Togetherness'

BERLIN (AP) — A peaceful fusillade of varicolored fireworks greeted the new year along the Communist wall today as Berliners celebrated the holiday together for the first time in nearly 29 months. They called it "a festival of togetherness."

West police reported all quiet—apart from fireworks—along the 101 miles of concrete and barbed wire surrounding the free part of this divided city. Under the rain of firecracker sparks thousands of armed men still stood guard along the cold-war frontier.

DAY PERMITS

Nearly 60,000 West Berliners visited the east sector, allowed entry with day permits granted by the Communist regime.

Communist authorities lifted the ban on fireworks for the first time since the Second World War.

Eastern and Western German leaders called for more East-West relaxation.

Russians Back Makarios

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — The Soviet Union announced Tuesday night it will support Cyprus' Greek Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios in a complaint against Turkey if he decides to press the Cyprus conflict before the United Nations.

The announcement came after police reported Turkish houses were burned down during an exchange of prisoners under a British-administered cease-fire between the hostile Turk and Greek communities.

President Makarios had said earlier in the day he will call for United Nations help if the British peace plan fails to reunify the Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Soviet Ambassador Pavel Yermoshin called on the president with a note saying:

"The Soviet Union feels sincere sympathy for the courageous, freedom-loving Cyprus people and shares their aspirations for safe-guarding their national integrity. The Soviet Union condemns any attempt at intervention in the internal affairs of Cyprus under any pretext or any form this may take."

Peru Government Toppled by Vote

LIMA, Peru (Reuters)—Fernando Schwalb was named premier in the wake of the resignation yesterday of Premier Oscar Trelles and his government after the Chamber of Deputies approved an opposition censure motion by a 74-to-46 vote.

The censure action apparently sprang from dissatisfaction with the former premier's handling of disturbances in the Cuzco region of southern Peru.

President Fernando Belaunde Terry asked Schwalb, who will continue as foreign minister, to form a new government.

Inverted Water Tank Croc Hunter's Home

DARWIN, Australia (CP) — Arvid Harry Blumentals, 37-year-old Latvian migrant who shoots crocodiles for a living, has moved into a new home—a 5,000-gallon water tank.

He bought it for $47 from the estate of northern Australian eccentric Roger Jose, a cultured and highly educated man who lived in the tank for 47 years until he died in November at the age of 69.

Jose had the wood-and-metal tank turned upside down, using the floor as a roof of his home. He said he liked it because it was cyclone-proof but he admitted it got terribly hot in summer.

Blumentals says he'll probably stay in the tank for the rest of his life, too. His neighbors, except for four white people who live at Borroloola, are wandering aboriginals.

How It Went In Victoria Last Year

By IAN STREET

Victoria's police department provided the top local news stories of 1963.

The first story broke early in January with the announcement that the attorney-general's department, acting on a request by the city police commission, had ordered a full investigation of efficiency and future needs of the department.

Rumbles continued for several months and then, one day before former RCMP superintendent George Archer made public the findings of his investigation, Police Chief John Blackstock resigned. There were no allegations of wrongdoing against the former chief.

Some time later Staff-Sgt. John Frederick Gregory, 43, with service totalling 21 years in the B.C. provincial force and RCMP, was given a two-year contract as chief constable.

* * *

The police headquarters, criticized as outdated and totally inadequate in the Archer report, is to be renovated and a new central police court added at a cost of some $350,000 after city ratepayers in December gave the money bylaw a four-to-one endorsement.

Other major news events of the year included:

January

More than 2,000 attended the first public reception held by Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo on New Year's Day. City aldermen said they were "shocked" at the conditions existing in the police station when they toured the building after announcement of the Archer probe.

The Willows Hotel in Campbell River was gutted by fire with the loss of three lives. The report on higher education in B.C., prepared by UBC president Dr. John MacDonald, here raised what local officials termed the "intriguing possibility" of establishment of a two-year community college on the old Lansdowne campus in a few years time. Premier Bennett announced legislation creating an autonomous University of Victoria.

February

Government House was in a flurry when the aircraft carrying Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to Australia and New Zealand was forced to return to Vancouver. But it was decided the royal couple would spend the night at a Vancouver Hotel. Victoria Chamber of Commerce celebrated its 100th anniversary with a $10-a-plate dinner of beef and Yorkshire pudding attended by 250. Mayor Wilson suggested the question of expanded library services be discussed by the intermunicipal committee.

* * *

Violence erupted twice in the space of a few days when a couple were shot and killed in their Saanich home and a young man shot and critically wounded his former girl friend in a city apartment then turned the gun on himself. Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner assured worried shipyard officials that the navy's frigate-building program "has not been shelved." HMCS Saskatchewan, a destroyer-escort built jointly by two local shipyards, was commissioned.

* * *

March

The pedestrian "scramble" light was removed from the Douglas-Yates intersection, and the Colonist recognized the craze for 50-mile hikes by arranging its own "walkathon" over a course laid out on the Saanich Peninsula. There were 332 entries; 66 finished within the alloted 20 hours.

The government announced plans for a $3,000,000 mental health centre for Victoria and new facilities for the retarded in Nanaimo.

* * *

Some 600 University of Victoria students marched in orderly fashion to the legislature where they presented a petition with 15,000 signatures demanding more grants towards higher education. Mr. Archer warned that building an efficient police force was a costly business. Metro health authorities called for a summit meeting of local municipalities to discuss future sewer needs in the area, and the navy's bomb disposal experts found potentially lethal weapons in many unlikely places. The last power pole was removed from downtown Victoria and a youth and a girl were shot to death at Nanaimo.

April

Queenie, the Beacon Hill Park horse, was to be replaced by a three-wheeled motor carrier. Limited convention facilities (for between 350 and 400) were to be included in the new civic playhouse in Centennial Square, and Ottawa announced start of construction of a $2,500,000 forest research laboratory in Saanich. Reports of indecent assaults in Beacon Hill Park result in council assigning additional patrols.

The provincial pollution control board rejected Saanich's application for permission to discharge treated sewage into Colquitz Creek. The municipality was forced to abandon its proposed $1,700,000 sewage scheme and one angry councillor charged an attempt was being made to blackmail Saanich into participating in a metro sewage scheme. A $7,000,000 retirement centre was proposed overlooking Esquimalt Lagoon, and police converged on a Glen Lake home and seized $5,000 in stolen goods.

May

Victoria, by dint of vigorous axe-wielding, managed to hold the tax line at the 1962 figure of 55 mills; but the other municipalities faced increases—Oak Bay, four mills; Esquimalt, two mills; Saanich, 4.73 mills in urban areas and 6.48 in rural area. Victoria Machinery Depot marked its 100th birthday, and Archie McKinnon was made a freeman of the city of Victoria for his 40 years as a coach and instructor at the YM-YWCA. The 1st Battalion, PPCLI, after six years here, was to go to Germany to be replaced here by the Queen's Own Rifles of Calgary.

Capital Region Planning Board proposed a 30-mile parkway around the city, and 66 graduates

Hundreds Worked While Rest of City Enjoyed Itself

Not everybody relaxes New Year's Eve. Hundreds of Greater Victorians put in shift last night and some worked even harder than usual to fill in for their holidaying colleagues. They included firemen, policemen, nurses, doctors and even newspapermen. For these people, New Year's didn't start until early hours of the morning, when all but most persistent celebrant had long since gone to bed. For most of them, it was a routine shift, but for some, holiday means even more work than usual as drivers and holidayers kicked up their usual fuss, with resultant injury and grief. In any case, whether you needed them or not — whether you even knew they were on job — they were there.—(Bud Kinsman Photos)

Flowers Trees In Bloom

It was a great New Year's Eve for the birds and the bees — and the flowers.

The temperature—though an unseasonal 54 degrees—was still 2.4 degrees shy of the record in 1917.

Flowers and trees burst into bloom in many parts of Greater Victoria and the bees were there to greet them.

Major S. R. Bowden, 405 Constance, reported an Easter lily with a seven-inch flower, while Mrs. Jessie Grant's garden at 1919 Davie had a salmon pink gladiolus in bloom.

HEATHER AND BEES

Mrs. Molly Gardne, 489 Foster, said six rows of heather blooming and honey bees were busy there yesterday. A cherry tree flowered at Cook and Southgate.

In Beacon Hill Park, blossoms embelished polyanthus and rose bushes, and even a pansy opened up.

The weatherman predicts continuing mild weather for today and tomorrow.

This morning's weather will probably be cloudy with some rain, but this afternoon should see partial clearing with a few showers, the weather office said.

To Good Tourist Year

Push Needed

Victoria and Vancouver Island could look forward to a good tourist year in 1964 if more "push" is shown in getting the advertising out, says Fred Martin, provincial president of the Motels and Resorts Association of B.C.

"People who saw the World's Fair in Seattle in 1962, came out in a hurry and I think this t the year they'll want to come back again," said the operator of the Hillside Auto Court.

He stressed that Island publicity was lacking and felt that more push was needed.

"I'm not blaming any individual. We're all responsible to a degree," he said.

He felt that more than 90 per cent of people coming to the Island would come through Victoria because they want to see the capitol.

Mr. Martin added that Victoria and Island advertising should be in California now but he doubted if it would be there by May or June.

"There must be one complete effort for the Island. The Island Publicity Bureau needs more push," Mr. Martin said.

The motels association will meet in Campbell River March 2 for an inter area conference.

Employment Jitters

Layoffs Near In Shipyards

By DON GAINS

Shipyard layoffs will start this month as the result of federal government cut backs, Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, said last night.

A survey of 1964 prospects for shipyard workers and servicemen in Victoria ranges from jittery to downright gloomy, following the defence department's announcement of its "judicious pruning" program.

Veiled hints of impending layoffs were given dockyard workers Christmas Eve but nothing definite was indicated.

They have been wondering ever since when the axe would fall and whether senior workers would be transferred to Esquimalt from closed naval establishments in Kamloops and Lynn Creek.

"The question of the reallocation of the labor force from such establishments . . . is now under active consideration," Commodore H. A. Winnet, commodore superintendent, Pacific Coast, said.

"Until this review is completed and clarification of some points of detail is obtained from naval headquarters it is not possible to estimate how many people actually employed at HMC Dockyard, if any, would be affected."

NO BIG CHANGES

"Based on information received to date it is not expected that any large scale adjustments in the labor force will take place," a naval spokesman said. "Should anybody be laid off from the dockyard every effort is being made to re-establish them in positions with other government departments."

A spokesman for Yarrows said work in hand would keep 500 present employees busy for the next six months. After that time, it's anybody's guess, he said.

COULD DROP

"We are now employing 925 men and this could drop to as low as 300 in the spring if no business develops," Mr. Husband of VMD said.

"The cancellation of the all-purpose frigate program for the navy has made long-range planning very difficult and the short-range prospects are not very bright."

The defence department's 50,000,000 pruning program includes a 21,000-man reduction in militia units, but no word has reached Victoria about cutbacks, a militia spokesman said.

NO WORD YET

Nor has any word been received of cutbacks at Work Point, an army spokesman said.

According to a navy message "further changes are under consideration in the regular forces but they require consultation with our allies and the minister is not in a position to announce these."

The navy's air arm is to be reduced by six fixed-wing aircraft and two helicopters.

"No official information has been received by Pacific Command with reference to any proposal to reduce the number of commissioned ships in the Pacific fleet," a naval spokesman said.

Spokesmen for all three services said the overall 10 per cent cut in manpower of 120,000 could probably be brought about by the natural process of retirement and other terminal causes.

Accident Victims — They Faced Death

From Hopelessness to Hope

By MIKE GADSBY

"Happy New Year" is more than just a casual wish for two Island people who faced death just a few months ago.

They are now facing 1964 with a renewed hope and enthusiasm which they have never known before.

Barry Craig, 19, of Victoria, was left paralyzed from the neck down after he broke his neck and back in a car accident in Manitoba in October.

Doctors told him he would never walk again, but he's proved them wrong.

Gordon Rasmussen, 10, of Nanaimo, was unconscious and near death for two months following a bicycle accident in which he suffered severe brain damage when he struck his head on a concrete carport abutment last May 12.

Even when his life was out of danger, his parents were told he would probably never recover sufficiently to lead a normal life.

* * *

But that was last summer. Today, after several operations and extensive treatment he has returned home from hospital to start his life all over again.

During his darkest days his parents never gave up hope for his recovery, and they were not disappointed.

His father, James, who works at Harmac Pulp Mill, near Nanaimo, said Gordon has had to start learning all over again.

* * *

"He took to walking pretty well," said Mr. Rasmussen, "but he has to learn to talk all over again.

"He forgot most of the things he has ever learned, but the doctor said his complete recovery will probably be spread over the next two years."

* * *

Barry Cragg was released from a Winnipeg hospital Monday afternoon, and walked unaided to the house of his fiancee, Linda Lewis, 3437 Seymour, at about midnight—just 2½ months after he was told he'd be permanently paralyzed.

Before his accident he had ambitions to become an auto mechanic, but he hasn't decided whether he plans to continue his vocational school training or not.

He can walk, said Miss Lewis, but he tires easily at the moment and will spend some time recuperating before making any plans.

* * *

And a Happy New Year to you, too!

Smiles on Long Road Back to Recovery

Welcoming kiss is given by fiancee Miss Linda Lewis, of 3437 Seymour, to Barry Cragg, of 3239 Seymour, who returned Monday night from Winnipeg where he spent two and a half months in hospital after a car accident. Doctors first thought his injuries would leave him paralyzed but his condition permitted his return home. — (Robin Clarke)

Smiling Gordon Rasmussen enjoys holiday season at home following ordeal that nearly cost him his life in bicycle accident in May. After life-and-death struggle, Gordon has come a long way on the road to recovery, and doctors say end is in sight. — (Agnes Flett)

12 Months of Contrast For Fulford Harbor Folk

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD HARBOUR — That old year of 1963 was a year of contrasts, in Fulford at least.

Snow blanketed Salt Spring Island, starting on Jan. 13. The temperature dipped to near zero, then warmed up, turned cold again by the end and gave out sleet and ice, and was altogether rather ornery — then it was suddenly Feb. 2 and the temperature rose to 50 at night, climbing to the 60's and 70's by noon.

The first bluebird arrived on Feb. 8, crocuses popped open on the lawns and the Department of Transport surprised the community by mending the float at the docks.

Sea lions cavorted near the shore, and Morry Akerman made news by beating the B.C. Emerald Glove champion Fred Fuller, at the boxing card in the Fulford Hall.

B.C. Logs were reported drifting from Vancouver Island onto Oahu beach in Hawaii, according to the Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

The sun continued to shine, with summery weather by day and a touch of frost at night—and shone into the month of March, giving lovely weather for weeks.

April Fool's Day changed things a bit, and it grew somewhat cooler—then the hummingbirds were here April 2 and 3, looking miserable in the cold.

The sparrows were wiser, they came April 16.

Three friends, Ronda Lee, Jayney French and Dianne Hobday, (whose birthdays all fall on the same date), celebrated their anniversary for the 15th consecutive year.

Then snow fell the first week in May but only on the mountains and by May 16 summer came back.

The temperatures rose to the 80's and 90's. It was so hot on May Day in Ganges that some recordings melted during the parade. So did people—almost.

In June the vivacious opera singer from England, Miss Maud Neilson, arrived to visit her cousins, Mrs. Betty Drummond and the Shaw family.

The Blenheim - Bolingbroke fighter 'plane, owned by George A. Maude of Pat Bay, and the only plane of its type in existence, as far as is known, left Fulford to be shipped to the Ottawa Air Museum. The 'plane had rested in Fulford for 17 years and had an exciting history.

Mrs. Dorothy Garbutt of the Winnipeg Free Press, where she is a columnist, visited Mrs. Frank Morrison, and was a guest of the Canadian Women's Press Club at a luncheon in Victoria.

The Mike Byron's little baby was christened at St. Mary's Church in July, and beauty came to the woods on the Island as masses of foxgloves bloomed over the hills and lanes.

Mothers in the district were stricken with baseball fever and challenged their sons to bat it out, while the ironing piled up at home and housework went agley . . . but, Oh, they had fun!

Land Loaned

The Shaw family offered the loan of a piece of land for a parking lot near the Fulford Hall — and the Hall itself had recently acquired a new hardwood floor, fit for roller skating. Mrs. A. J. Hepburn was honored by her Grade 12 students in appreciation for her inspiring leadership.

In August, St. Paul's historical Roman Catholic Church, built in 1880, once more opened its doors to services on a Sunday morning, after several years of closed doors.

Pirates Land

Mrs. G. Maude and her daughter Alison, A. E. Roddis and Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Stewart were all off on a trip to England, Scotland and other parts.

Pirates took over Salt Spring Island and the Jolly Roger flew from masts. Brigands seized girls and took them "aboard the lugger." Fulford went "over the top" on its Pirate Day with a beef barbeque, clam bake and dance in the Fulford Hall. Those were three wild days—Aug. 9, 10 and 11.

By September, everyone on the island seemed slightly "pooped" after all the excitement—but even so, that was a lively month.

Whales Seen

Killer whales were heard blowing in the harbor and they cavorted near the shore. The Victoria Power Squadron held its annual Yacht Club picnic at Solimar.

The Fulford Salmon Derby got under way, and garbage dumpers came under fire from the health department.

Pat Stewart tried to bring up a baby kingfisher. May Queen Nancy Reynolds reigned over the island for 1963 and into 1964. Several large skates were caught near Russell Island by deep-sea fishing.

R. Patterson was elected to trustee on the school board—School District 64 (Gulf Islands).

Barn Gone

The Fulford Athletic Club and hall committee gave the children a Halloween party in October. Roller skating and badminton and other sports have been rolling along merrily.

November saw the end of an historical old barn as it was demolished on the Gyves property by Gordie Padgett and Chris Rees.

The veteran ferry Mv. Cy Peck once more filled in for the Horseshoe Bay - Gibson Landing ferry.

December brought colored lights around the harbor, Santa Claus visited the children in the Fulford Hall, and buckets and buckets of rain fell, overflowing lakes, streams and making new ones.

A Little Wet

Four feet of water ran over the road by the lake at Beaver Point.

Christmas week brought the lovely carol services, and a surprise gift from the heavens on Christmas morning — a gorgeous sunrise and a lovely, bright, sunny day!

Chimes rang out over the sea and it was a happy Christmas for all—in spite of 1963 ending the last week all wet. As 1964 is just coming around the bend, here's wishing all a Happy New Year!

Teaching Job Illegal Under Schools Act

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — School board chairman James MacPhie said Tuesday one of his trustees has charged that a minister is teaching illegally in Port Alberni schools.

Mr. MacPhie said the unidentified trustee has backed up his complaint by sections of the Public Schools Act.

The minister in question is Rev. Bruce Fleming of the Church of the Nazarene, who said the rule at issue states no clergyman of any denomination is eligible for the position of superintendent, trustee or teacher.

"As far as I know," Mr. Fleming said, "this is the only province with such a stipulation in the Public Schools Act."

He said the section barring clergymen was incorporated early in the 20th century to bar religious fanatics from instructing in schools. He added wryly that he "didn't think" he was a fanatic.

Mr. Fleming, who possesses an education degree from a California university, is considered "unqualified" under provincial law because his certificate is now acknowledged here, but may teach as a substitute for not more than 30 days in a school year.

Since 1960 Mr. Fleming has accepted substitute work at Valley School on this basis. He has not taught school since September.

Mr. MacPhie said the complaint has not been reiterated by the trustee since first made and most members of the board favor retention of Mr. Fleming in a substitute capacity.

How to Appreciate New Year's Day

NEW YORK (AP) — As a public service, Dr. Herbert Gould offers this prescription for a hangover: Drink one ounce of cognac in three ounces of champagne.

"Cognac is a stimulant. Champagne adds tone to the weariest of days and inspires a feeling of gaiety."

He's president of the Physicians' Wine Appreciation Society of New York.

In Cowichan Valley

Car Business Prospers

DUNCAN — The country's booming economy in 1963 reflects favorably on the Cowichan Valley and in turn benefitted car and truck dealers throughout the year.

All seven dealers interviewed agreed 1963 has been exceptionally good, and the prospects for 1964 are promising.

A. A. Morris, manager of Sansum Motors, which handles Chrysler products, said his company is high on the registration list compared with other Chrysler dealers throughout British Columbia.

He noted a considerable increase in sales of all Chrysler products in the Duncan area over last year, and said the five-year warranty was one of the factors contributing to the boost.

Mr. Morris said the compact car still sells very well, but European models are not as popular as they were a few years ago.

Sales manager Wally Stipe of Duncan Motors, one of two Ford outlets here, said: "What we did in 1962 in 12 months we did in 1963 in 10 months."

He explained his firm was completely sold out of 1963 models when the new 1964 stock arrived on the market here.

The biggest selling months for Duncan Motors were May, June, July and August. Mr. Stipe feels a swing from the compact models to the bigger cars is noticeable.

QUALITY

He said the past year could have been better if his company had had a better supply. Speaking in general terms he said, "more quality is going into cars today."

Auto salesman Peter Henry of Wilson Motors, holding the General Motors dealership at Duncan maintenance sales were up 20 per cent in 1963 over 1962, and people spent "a lot more money on luxury compacts."

September and October he described as the best two months, and compact cars are still in heavy demand.

He said the trend is toward Canadian and U.S. cars, and away from European models.

Mr. Henry said people who have been buying big cars still buy them, but families with two or even three cars are directing their attention to the compact models.

BUSINESS GOOD

In agreement with Duncan car dealers that a brisk second-hand car business reflects the good new car business, he said some second-hand car dealers load up their lots with cars from Winnipeg and Vancouver, which puts the established used car business out of balance.

Co-owners of Hayes-Palmer Motors, Vic Palmer said Ramblers sold exceptionally well throughout the year and the compact models are still top sellers.

Small car sales were slower but they probably will come back with the lifted surcharges in imports, he said.

Mr. Palmer said Rambler sales doubled in 1963, compared with the preceeding year. "We anticipate an even better year in 1964," he stated.

VW AHEAD

Still leading very considerably in the import models is Volkswagen, and the Duncan VW dealer, Chuck McGuire said the factory obliges Canadian requirements with the introduction of the "1500" series and the use of bigger engines.

Up to October 1963, in the Cowichan Valley, 76 new cars out of a total of 119 imported autos were Volkswagens.

Another dealer of imports, William Saunders, who handles Volvo from Sweden said this car is selling steadily, and the service has been much improved since the establishment of the assembly plant in Nova Scotia.

Subway Driver Murdered

NEW YORK (AP)—A subway train motorman was stabbed to death in his engineer compartment Monday, but the train automatically stopped when he released the controls. About 150 passengers were aboard the IRT express.

The IRT is the Interborough Rapid Transit line that connects four of the five boroughs that make up New York City.

STOP KICKING

Police said motorman Frank Miland, 38, opened the door of his compartment to tell a man to stop kicking it.

But the man continued to kick and shout, and when Miland opened the door a second time, the man stabbed him in the abdomen with a switchblade knife. The knifer, identified as a Negro about 25 years old, then fled.

Two Hurt In Fire On Ship

AHOUSAT (CP)—Two persons suffered burns Monday when fire swept their 33-foot trroller as it was alongside a wharf at this West Coast Island community.

Capt. Percy Campbell, 35, suffered minor burns to his legs. Harold Little, Jr., 27, was in satisfactory condition in Tofino hospital with facial burns.

The troller Paloma was destroyed. Capt. Campbell said the loss was $1,0000—$6,000 of which was covered by insurance.
